HURRICANE CARLA ROARS INTO TEXAS

Damage Mounts Into Millions

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—Hurricane Carla roared inland Monday night from along the Texas coast where it left millions of dollars in property damage.

Its force had diminished but it whipped up winds as high as 70 miles an hour in the Austin area of central Texas.

The hurricane dropped her winds from as much as 173 miles an hour to 110 as she moved slowly northward from Port Lavaca, about 75 miles northeast of Corpus Christi.

BIG BRAWLER
The big brawler splintered and smashed property from Cameron, La., to Corpus Christi, 500 miles apart on the Louisiana-Texas gulf coast.

Monday night, tornado-like winds bounced out of its fringe along Houston's ship channel. From 15 to 20 persons were reported injured. Six business establishments were destroyed and 34 homes damaged.

AT THE TIME
Houston was caught in Carla's outskirts at the time. Wind gusts of 60 to 65 miles an hour shook her.

Far inland, 150 miles to the northwest, near the Texas capital of Austin, the little town of Elgin was being lashed at the same time by a 70-mile-an-hour gale. Another small town, Se-Guin, near San Antonio, was jarred by winds of 50 miles an hour. At Lagrange, another inland town, winds ranged up to 98 miles an hour.

GIANT WAVE
Even as the storm's vanguard moved overland, a giant tidal wave was swung again at Palacios on the coast. A tide of 13 feet eight inches poured water over the first floor of the hospital.

The weather bureau reported the hurricane's winds down to 110 miles an hour but warned Carla is still dangerous and may be slow to die.

50 MILES HOUR
Winds diminished at coastal points after darkness fell. At Galveston it dropped to 50 miles an hour, at Corpus Christi to 25.

The refugees for the most part, still depended on temporary shelter. At Austin, Red Cross officials reported 180,330 evacuees were sheltered in 68 Texas counties. Of these 3,000 were infants.

FINALLY HIT
Carla, after sparring for hours offshore, finally hit Port Lavaca in the afternoon. There all but a thousand of the 10,000 residents had fled.

Up and down the coast residents had rushed to safer country. Civil defence authorities said 500,000 had fled—probably the largest exodus in U.S. history. The Red Cross estimated 300,000.

The rich coastal plains, facing a loss of $100,000,000 in cotton and rice crops alone, was all but deserted.

No deaths were traced directly to Carla but her deadly offspring—a series of tornadoes—claimed the life of a four-week-old baby in the little town of Kaplan, La. There a tornado cut a 14-block path of destruction.

But the big threat from Carla apparently had passed for Louisiana.

One of thousands of personal tragedies caused by Hurricane Carla is etched on the face of Cal Breeding, Channelview, Texas, who, with his wife was reluctantly evacuated by rescue boat and forced to leave his home—for the first time in his life.

'Crepe-Hangers' Lashed Still Hope, Says Green

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green, declaring there still is a "reasonable chance" for disarmament, hit out Monday at the "jeremiahs and crepe-hangers" in Ottawa who try to belittle Canada's efforts to halt the arms race.

Mr. Green said in the Commons there seems to be a feeling in Ottawa "that I'm down in the dumps over disarmament and have given it up as hopeless."

"This was a false notion. I think the demand for disarmament will be greater than ever before."

Canada will go to the forthcoming United Nations meeting to do what it can to rally world opinion behind disarmament and an end to nuclear testing, Mr. Green said.

TOO SERIOUS

"This issue may involve the whole future of civilization and it is much too serious a proposition to have doubting Thomases all over the place."

Opposition Leader Pearson said no one wanted to underestimate Mr. Green's optimism. But it was difficult to be an optimist and still take a realistic view of the situation.

Mr. Pearson recalled that Mr. Green himself said last week the world was hovering on the brink of nuclear war.

Canada Plans Help For Caribbean Area

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is trying to organize a program of aid for the Caribbean region on the same scale as the Colombo plan, External Affairs Minister Green told the Commons Monday night.

The Colombo plan is a joint aid program for Southeast Asia.

Mr. Green said Canada does not know yet whether the Colombo idea will work in the Caribbean but is going to try to get the project started.

He gave no other details.

Kennedy Advice Still Irks Green

OTTAWA (UPI)—External Affairs Minister Howard Green last night indicated that a decision on Canada's membership in the Organization of American States (OAS) would be made "in due course."

Green also indicated the Canadian government's displeasure with President Kennedy's suggestion during his visit to Canada that this country should join the OAS.

He told the House of Commons during discussion of External Affairs Department estimates that before any decision was made the Canadian people should "realize" just what the implications of such a move would be.

Green made the comments after former Liberal cabinet minister Paul Martin called on the government to join the OAS. (See also Page 30.)

He told the House that "one of the least effective ways of persuading Canada to adopt a policy is for the president or head of state of another country to come here and tell us what we should do, even though it is done with the best intentions."

"Even when it is done in that way, it is not the best way to get results," Green said, "and I am rather surprised that the honorable member would suggest that we should at once have jumped through the hoop."

Tshombe Resists Union of Congo

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuters) — President Moise Tshombe of Katanga province claimed Monday night that the United Nations plans to end the independence of his break-away province before the opening of its General Assembly session Sept. 19.

Tshombe told his second press conference Monday that "Katanga is the object of political manoeuvring and even threats" by the U.N.

HEAVILY ARMED

The Katanga leader called the conference as heavily-armed Katanga patrols rumbled through the streets of Elisabethville.

The troops were called out in the face of mounting tension over a threatened showdown

TOKYO (AP) — Typhoon Pamela, packing centre winds of 145 miles an hour, was reported nearing central Formosa early today.

The central meteorological agency in Tokyo said Pamela was 96 miles south southeast of Taipei at 3 a.m. and moving west at 18 m.p.h.

Meanwhile, typhoon Nancy, another storm roaring over the

'We Will Fight' Vows NATO Boss

OTTAWA (CP)—The secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization said Monday that if there is aggression against West Berlin "we will fight."

Dirk Stikker, the one-time Netherlands foreign minister who took over the NATO post only last spring, said that from a military standpoint Berlin could and would be defended if the crisis reached the point of war.

FOOLISH ENOUGH

But the NATO leader did not feel Russian Premier Khrushchev was "foolish enough to increase the tensions to the point of war."

In a free-wheeling press conference Dr. Stikker also said:

That nuclear warheads should be spread over more

NATO countries to improve the bargaining position of the alliance; use of nuclear weapons should be put under NATO-wide control; steps were being taken to improve consultation among members of the 15 nation alliance.

MEETS DIFENBAKER

Dr. Stikker met Canadian government officials Monday and will talk with Prime Minister Diefenbaker today.

He said the talks, covering a wide range of topics, would naturally touch on the possibility of Canada obtaining nuclear arms. His visit would serve to "bring the links of the alliance still closer" at a time of crisis touched off by the Berlin situation and the resumption of nuclear testing by Russia.

WITHIN NATO

Dr. Stikker said his personal opinion is that there should be nuclear weapons within NATO "in as wide a range as possible" to increase the bargaining power of the alliance, but that the control of such weapons should be brought under the alliance as a whole.

He criticized the present system of single or two-power control.

He Had Garbage On His Conscience

DUNCAN — A Cherry Point resident, with a whole year's garbage on his conscience, has sent Duncan council a cheque for $10 to pay for his use of the city's dump.

A letter from P. D. McLennan, enclosing the cheque, was read to a thunderstruck city council last night.

Mr. McLennan's letter said he had been using the dump for more than a year though not a resident of the city.

His conscience, he said, "is extremely elastic" but still refused to allow him to impose further on the city.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

Everybody has heard about the Lizzie Borden murder case and practically everybody takes it for granted she did it. "Lizzie Borden took an axe and gave her mother 40 whacks. When she saw what she had done, she gave her father 41."

A new book, "Lizzie Borden: The Untold Story," by Edward Radin (Simon and Schuster) tries to prove Lizzie Borden was innocent and the victim of a legend.

To anyone like me, with vague memories of the case and just a dim notion that

Lizzie Borden's guilt was settled way back in the 19th century, this seems like another of those attempts to make a fast literary buck—write a book that takes a well-known historical fact and says it was not so.

Hardly Any Doubt

Now I've read Mr. Radin's book and know better. It's a sober, solid, thoroughly researched book, leaving hardly any doubt Lizzie Borden was in fact innocent and the murders were committed by someone else. (I can't give away Mr. Radin's solution but can assure you it makes perfectly good sense.)

The murders were committed Aug. 4, 1892, in Fall River, Mass. The victims were Andrew Borden and his second

It Grew and Grew

Why does everybody believe she did the murders? Mr. Radin shows this was mainly due to the famous "40 whacks" jingle, plus a book by Edmund Pearson, "Studies in Murder," which appeared in 1924 and stated the case against Lizzie very persuasively. The legend grew and grew and finally was universally accepted.

Now here is an interesting question. Will this new book become the basic book on the Lizzie Borden case and change, once and for all, the verdict of history? Or will the legend persist and Mr. Radin's painstaking research turn out to have been in vain?

My own pessimistic conclusion is that fiction probably will be stronger than truth. I'm afraid 10 or 20 years from now people will still remember that "Lizzie Borden took an axe" and blithely assume that she was caught in the act, convicted of murder and hanged.

Off-Shore Rights Claim Reiterated

Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan yesterday reiterated B.C. claims that it has jurisdiction over mineral and oil rights on lands under the water off the west coast.

He said B.C. had full jurisdiction over its off-shore lands when this province entered Confederation and that there was no statute or legislation on the books giving these rights to the federal government.

"How then can they claim they now have jurisdiction," said Mr. Kiernan.

He was commenting on an announcement in Ottawa by Resources Minister Dinsdale that the federal government does not intend yielding its jurisdiction over off-shore resources.

The B.C. government recently awarded exploration permits covering 1,000,000 acres of off-shore land to 12 oil companies. Some of the land covering these permits had

Your Good Health

Nodules, Cancer, Smoking Could Cause Hoarseness

By JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What causes my vocal cords to become paralyzed? X-rays have been taken of my chest. Sometimes my voice sounds natural chiefly in the morning, but it soon becomes hoarse.—H.B.C."

The vocal cords are really a pair of folds of mucous membrane which project into the larynx or "voice box." Changing the tension on them changes the shape and hence is one—but only one—of the things which helps form speech or other vocal sounds.

Hoarseness is some interference with the usual sharp precision with which the vocal cords (or folds) form the sound.

SINGER'S NODULES
Ordinary nodules, bumps or growths sometimes form on the cords of people who do a great deal of talking or singing, and are known as "singer's nodules." Medically this isn't dangerous.

At the opposite extreme is cancer of the larynx or lower throat. This is a very serious condition. However, treated as soon as the trouble is identified, it can usually be cured.

When the larynx itself is removed, a new method of speaking must be learned. This has been done by thousands of people in instances of a large portion of the "voice box" tissue being removed.

Not so well known is the fact that in a good many cases surgery leaves the patient speaking with his normal voice.

How about in-between cases? Pressure on the nerves of the larynx can cause hoarseness. The pressure may be from goiter, a lung tumor or enlargement of the aorta—the big artery from the heart. All as a general rule can be corrected or alleviated, although the sooner the situation is attacked, the better for the patient.

And I'd add one more frequent factor: Excessive smoking can cause hoarseness due to irritation and swelling of the vocal cords.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Would distention of the belly have anything to do with breathing?"

My breathing is so bad I can hardly walk from one room to another without getting all out of breath.—H.B.C."

Distention of stomach or bowel can interfere with breathing, but only under extreme conditions such as a bowel obstruction or after an abdominal operation. Any ordinary amount of "gasiness" should not cause the extreme shortness of breath that you mention.

Mrs. J. This daughter who is so intent on washing her hands that they become sore is obviously the victim of some sort of neurosis. I would certainly suggest consulting a psychiatrist. She isn't mentally ill; she just needs help in understanding her quirk.

"Dear Dr. Molner: We are an old couple, 75 and 85, who like prepared meats, frankfurters, sausage, etc. but everything contains sodium nitrite as a preservative. Is this harmful?—Mr. and Mrs. A.E.R."

No. Don't be misled by chemical names. Sodium nitrite in the amounts used to retard spoilage will do no harm and will do a great deal of good. Foods containing sodium nitrite should not be used by persons on a low salt or salt-free diet because of the sodium.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What's your opinion regarding an operation on the first joint of a finger for degenerative rheumatoid arthritis? The joint is badly swollen and deformed. It would mean fusing the bone together with pins, as is done with a broken hip, and the joint itself would be stiff.—F.F.N."

The movement of an arthritic joint is painful. Fusing means giving up the bending of that joint in return for more comfort and, probably, relief from the swelling. I'd think it over carefully. The joint will be rigid from then on, but the result might be worth the operation.

Parksville Meeting

Pay Scale Roughed Out For Island Teachers

The first regional salary scale for Vancouver Island teachers was roughed out at a meeting in Parksville over the weekend.

Though the schedule calls for only fractional increases, and does not include teachers in either the Victoria or Courtenay districts, it will likely be used as a sort of "starting point" for bargaining in future.

Chairman of the Victoria school board, W. C. Gelling, explained that an arbitration board had set local salaries at the lower mainland metropolitan level.

Even though both Victoria and Courtenay boards declined to participate, it is felt they would have to conform to gradations of the new scale if accepted by the others.

If successful, the new plan would help standardize teacher wage negotiations throughout the province. While each local board would continue to negotiate with its own teachers, the new regional schedules would provide the starting point.

Driveway robbery.

He bought a Volkswagen for his wife and drove it around the block just for fun. Now he drives it downtown for business. He leaves the big car, with its driving problems, at home and smiles his way through heavy traffic and into parking spots. He's the happiest car thief on four wheels.

And why not. His year-round average is 30 miles to a gallon of gas. He gets better traction on mud and sand because the engine's in the rear with its weight over the drive wheels.

The Volkswagen engine is air cooled. There's no radiator. No water to boil over. (The only water a VW uses is in the windshield washer.)

In summer he avoids traffic, follows the back roads to the golf course. The Volkswagen's unique suspension smooths out bumps and ruts, even at top speed. And on tight corners, it has the handle and feel of an expensive sports car, without the pain of the price.

The new VW engine provides more power with the same gas economy. All four speeds are synchronized. And the extra space under the front hood nearly doubles the car's luggage capacity.

There's no getting away from it. The first thing a man can do is buy his wife a Volkswagen.

London Buzzing

Feud Rages Over Book

LONDON (Reuters)—A bitter feud between two famed modern historians at Oxford University is keeping London intellectual circles buzzing.

The controversy was sparked by publication of A. J. P. Taylor's latest book, "The Origins of the Second World War," which argues that Adolf Hitler did not plan world conquest and tried only to conduct a realistic brand of international politics.

WELL RECEIVED

The book was well received by critics in London newspapers.

But Hugh Trevor-Roper, 47-year-old Regius professor of modern history at Oxford, launched a scathing attack on the Taylor work in the British magazine Encounter.

BEST SELLER

Trevor-Roper, himself the author of the best-selling "The Last Days of Hitler," said Taylor "selects, suppresses and arranges evidence" and called the book "utterly erroneous." He accused Taylor of trying to set the stage for a contemporary reconciliation to Russian diplomacy by praising Britain's pre-war conciliations to Hitler.

Taylor, 55-year-old, bow-tied lecturer at Magdalen College, Oxford, said of Trevor-Roper's

LONDON (UPI)—An American rocket expert said yesterday the Russians may be preparing to orbit a satellite with two or three persons aboard, one of them possibly a woman.

"This seems to me to be a logical next step in the Soviet space program," said Frederick C. Durant III, who returned here after 10 days of talks with rocket experts in Russia.

"The propaganda impact, especially if one of the crew were a woman, would be immense," commented Durant, a former president of the International Astronautical Federation.

Durant said a Moscow announcement of new rocket tests in the Pacific probably was a prelude to a new series of space projects. He pointed out that the July, 1960, Soviet tests in the Pacific were followed by a shot-orbiting animals in preparation for the Yuri Gagarin flight.

FIRST STEP

Durant said Russia is capable now of the first step in the construction of space platforms—"rendezvous rockets."

"For example, they could orbit two rockets close to each other—one carrying men and the other materials," he said. "I don't know where this project stands in their priorities but I shouldn't be surprised if they tried it in the not too distant future."

criticism: "He doesn't know what he's talking about."

The row reached a crescendo when the pair met on television shortly afterward.

A TRIUMPH

Discussing the Munich agreement Taylor said it was "a triumph for all those who had preached international conciliation."

"It was a triumph for appeasement and revision of treaties," Taylor declared. To this Trevor-Roper retorted: "It was a triumph for cowardice."

LONG STANDING

Controversy between the two men is of long-standing nature. Trevor-Roper's appointment to the coveted professorship was somewhat of a surprise in 1957.

The man who had been favored for the position was A. J. P. Taylor.

Mouth-to-Bill

Mouth-to-bill resuscitation worked when an injured duck, dropped out of the sky and landed at Richard Orbaker's feet at Tucson, Arizona. Five buckshot pellets were plucked out of the bird's body, after which it "died." After 30 seconds respiration, the bird responded—and is still alive. —(AP Photofax).

One Killed, 14 Injured When Jews, Moslems Riot

ALGIERS (Reuters)—Riot police went into action twice Monday in Oran, western Algeria, to stop fighting between Jews and Moslems on the occasion of the Jewish New Year. One Moslem was killed and two Moslems and 12 Europeans were injured in the day's racial violence, but only one of the injured was detained in hospital.

Riot police tried to stop a second clash between Moslems and Jews in the Jewish quarter of Oran after the initial outbreak.

Moslems in the crowd hurled three grenades at the police, injuring four of them. Four civilians and one soldier.

Ike Thinks West Must Stand Firm

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—Former president Dwight D. Eisenhower said yesterday there was not much for the free world to negotiate in the Berlin crisis because the West had no concessions it could make at present.

Eisenhower, World War II allied commander, also criticized as "inaccurate and misleading" a recent state department pamphlet on Berlin. Some Republicans have charged that the pamphlet implied Eisenhower was responsible for the current crisis.

The former Republican president discussed the Berlin problem and other issues with a group of freshmen GOP congressmen after taking them on a tour of the Gettysburg battlefield near his farm home.

Eisenhower said that in any negotiations both sides must be ready to make some concessions. Since the allies cannot give up any of their legal rights in Berlin, he said, there is nothing for them to negotiate now.

He emphasized, however, that he did not believe the West should slam the door on any talks. He said he believed "in keeping the chairs open and a table there."

The state department pamphlet which aroused Eisenhower's ire was issued

Aug. 18 and was entitled: "Berlin—1961."

It said allied armies could have captured Berlin ahead of the Soviets in the closing days of World War II or at least could have joined the Russians in capturing it. But it added that then Gen. Eisenhower believed the armies could be used better elsewhere.

Eisenhower told the congressmen that secretary of state Dean Rusk had called him earlier in the day to say that the pamphlet was not meant to be critical in any way.

Discussing the question of a divided Germany, Eisenhower told the congressmen that this decision was made by allied political leaders over his opposition.

Until he can fill a man's shoes— you should get a FAMILY SECURITY CHECK-UP

He lives in a world of make-believe. You can't. You've got to plan for him until he fills the big shoes.

To make sure your plans are realistic, start with a Family Security Check-Up. It will tell you—for you and your family's sake—exactly where you stand on such things as pension, savings, group insurance and the like.

When you know where you stand financially—you can make realistic plans for the future. How can you possibly know unless you check?

More than an interview—a service

Now Metropolitan, the Company you look to for authoritative information on physical health, offers you a way to check your family's financial health—the Family Security Check-Up. It is available to everyone—whether you need insurance or not—and whether or not you have a Metropolitan policy.

Metropolitan representatives have been trained in Metropolitan's own schools and are qualified by solid experience to bring you this service. They are equipped with business-like charts and tables that show you clearly, in black and white, exactly where you stand.

Call your Metropolitan man today for a Family Security Check-Up.

There is no obligation—except to those you love.

WHAT IT IS AND WHAT IT DOES FOR YOU

With the help of your Metropolitan man—

1. You check the facts: your pension plan, your home, your life insurance, your savings and other assets. You may be surprised to learn how much you're worth.

2. You weigh your responsibilities: mortgage or rent payments, education, retirement, accident and sickness emergencies; how much it would cost your family to live without you.

3. You learn where you stand. You determine your weak and strong points... whether the provisions you have made for your family will do what you intend. You get the facts in front of you.

4. You plan for the future. Based on these facts, you decide what action, if any, may be needed to give you a family security plan, tailor-made to your own needs and ambitions—one which makes good sense for you.

Bomb Tests

Karl Marx advocated any procedure short of all-out war in order that the final objectives of world communism be realized. This of course includes deceit, dishonesty and disillusionment.

Our world statesmen know this, yet they, out of sheer panic continually endeavour to get Russia to give various pledges which if and when obtained would not be worth the paper they are written upon.

For a while we felt reasonably secure insofar as nuclear testing was concerned, yet any of our leading psychologists could have disillusioned us if we would have bothered to listen.

Presuming that it would take from three to four years to prepare a complete new series of nuclear bombs for testing, what would more simple then to go along with a voluntary no-test ban for that period of time then create an acceptable attitude within their own country and as many phony excuses outside as deemed necessary. Then "Bang."

In the meantime while the other nations are praying and begging them to stop they will have completed the testing and then magnanimously desist until the next time. Of course on the understanding that all the other nations refrain from testing also.

I think Mr. Kennedy has the right idea and should go along with Russia but not until they too have completed their testing.

No One Else

There are men it seems who, with a chip on their shoulders, are bent about the world seeking pugnacious opponents, never realizing that those they seek are themselves. If they would sacrifice their own war-like attitudes, there would be no war! All that man has to face is himself. He is both the seeker and the sought after. There is no other fellow.

Diogenes of course, carried a light when seeking an honest man. He too, little realized he was seeking himself, being unsuccessful. The other fellow didn't materialize.

All for Selves

I am an old age pensioner, nearly 80, and receive the full pension $79 monthly.

I note the carpenters have just received an increase in pay, which brings their daily wage for eight hours to $24. If I hire a carpenter for one day, I must pay him nearly one-third of my monthly income!!

In the Colonist it says "The rise in living costs followed an increase in industrial wages during June," so I suppose living costs will automatically rise here following this latest increase in industrial wages.

Where is it all going to end? And who cares about the victims, namely people living on fixed incomes, like old age pensioners?

It's the old story: "Everyone for themselves, and the Devil takes the hindmost," namely us, the OAP's.

Worse Ogre

Having spent a number of years in the Middle East and two years in Austria, during the occupation of the Four Powers, I feel that the fundamental aspect of today's crisis in the world, and the impossible situation which is building up between U.S.A. and the Soviet regime, is due to the complete inability to understand each other's reasoning.

I have had the opportunity of meeting a number of intellectual Russians, during my years as a quasi diplomatic capacity in Persia and Iraq, and in conversations with these personages, always the same trend of thought, has become apparent. The people in Russia today have been brought to a standard of living, never before experienced under the rule of imperialism as existed during the Czars. They have an Oriental makeup in their reasoning which we in the West cannot understand, and herein lies our difficulty.

Russia today, I feel sure does not want war, and neither does she wish to lose her national status. There is however a larger, more ominous ogre appearing on the horizon, that of China. This I think is why disarmament can never be achieved; an agreement with the Western Nations would virtually mean the end of security from the East NOT the West, and this we must all face sooner or later.

This may well explain the Soviets' reaction to nuclear tests during the past week, and we must face up to the fact that communism must be accepted by us as something more than a dirty word.

Why Howl?

One seldom hears protest from stockholders, union members or customers when officers of a company go for a cruise in the company yacht or spend a week fishing at the company's lodge.

Taxpayers seldom complain when members of Government go on trips paid for out of taxes.

Why is it that when a group of naval officers take a small naval vessel that would otherwise be lying idle, and costing about as much to keep in harbor as to sail the waters, and use it to combine a training cruise with a fishing trip, howls are heard from all directions?

Aren't people queer?

Montreal New Hub For Drugs

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal Star says Montreal has replaced New York as the centre of the illegal narcotics business in North America.

In the first of a series of articles on narcotics, The Star quotes unidentified United States officials as saying that 60 per cent of all the heroin smuggled into Canada and the United States is brought to Montreal.

LITTLE STAYS

Apparently little of it stays here. The Star says only 25 per cent of the heroin imported through Montreal is intended for Canadian consumption, and that Toronto has more addicts than Montreal, and Vancouver many more.

"Yet Montreal remains the big operations centre," the newspaper says, "with local mobsters supplying both Vancouver and Toronto."

Much of the 75 per cent earmarked for the United States was sent to New York, which had 45 per cent of that country's drug addicts.

Shipbuilding Subsidy Stirs Interest

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian shipowners and shipbuilders are showing a "tremendous amount of interest" in the government's new program to ship construction aid, a reliable source said Monday.

He said it is too early yet to put a price tag on the interest generated by Transport Minister Balcer's subsidy plan for made-in-Canada cargo and fishing ships, aimed at boosting employment in Canada's 16 major and 30 minor shipbuilding yards.

The government has earmarked $10,000,000 in the current estimates for the subsidy program announced last May. Regulations spelling out how the subsidies are to be paid were tabled Monday in the Commons by Mr. Balcer.

The new rules place the program under the Canadian Maritime Commission, working through a special interdepartmental committee manned by officials from the departments of transport, finance, defence production and fisheries.

However, they leave it up to the transport minister to decide what proportion of any ship built with federal help will be Canadian in content.

Canadian materials and equipment will be used as the minister decides is "practicable after considering the cost and availability of those materials and equipment."

The federal treasury will pay 40 per cent of the approved cost of building self-propelled ships of 100 gross tons or more, tugs of 50 gross tons or more, and barges of 200 gross tons or more.

All shipowners qualifying registry for five years, or for federal assistance must first-one-fifth of the subsidy for give an undertaking to main-every year short of the five-retain the ship on Canadian year period.

Human 'Ark' Urged

ROME — World scientists should get to work at once on a modern Noah's Ark in which to bank a sample of uncontaminated human life in case a nuclear holocaust destroys civilization, an Italian geneticist told a science congress.

"We should concentrate on a new version of Noah's Ark to preserve a representative pool of uncorrupted human genes," said Professor Adrian Buzzati-Traverso.

Buzzati Traverso endorsed a "sperm pool" idea that Prof. Hermann J. Muller, Nobel Prize zoologist of the University of Indiana, advanced last week.

LAUSANNE — Reliable sources in this Swiss city said Monday the engagement may soon be announced of Princess Sophia of Greece, 22, and Prince Don Juan Carlos de Bourbon, 23, heir of the pretender to the Spanish throne.

CASTEL GANDOLFO — Pope John received the wife of the Congolese president, Mrs. Joseph Kasavubu, in private audience Monday at his summer residence near Rome.

MONTREAL — Peter Melnyk, 38, and T. Hukalo, 29, charged with disturbing the peace during demonstrations against the Red Army chorus performing in Montreal, changed their pleas in court from guilty to not guilty. Hukalo, who gave a false name to police, said he did so to escape Russian vengeance.

LONDON — The League Against Cruel Sports reported that thousands of protests were received at its offices after Air Minister Julian Amory visited a bullfight while holidaying in Spain.

NEW YORK — Maria Beale Fletcher, Miss America of 1962, stepped into the glamor world of New York and admitted she wants a man as fresh and wholesome as the Blue Ridge Mountains air of her Asheville, N.C., home. "He must have a wonderful sense of humor, love children, be kind and considerate," said the newly crowned beauty queen of her dream man.

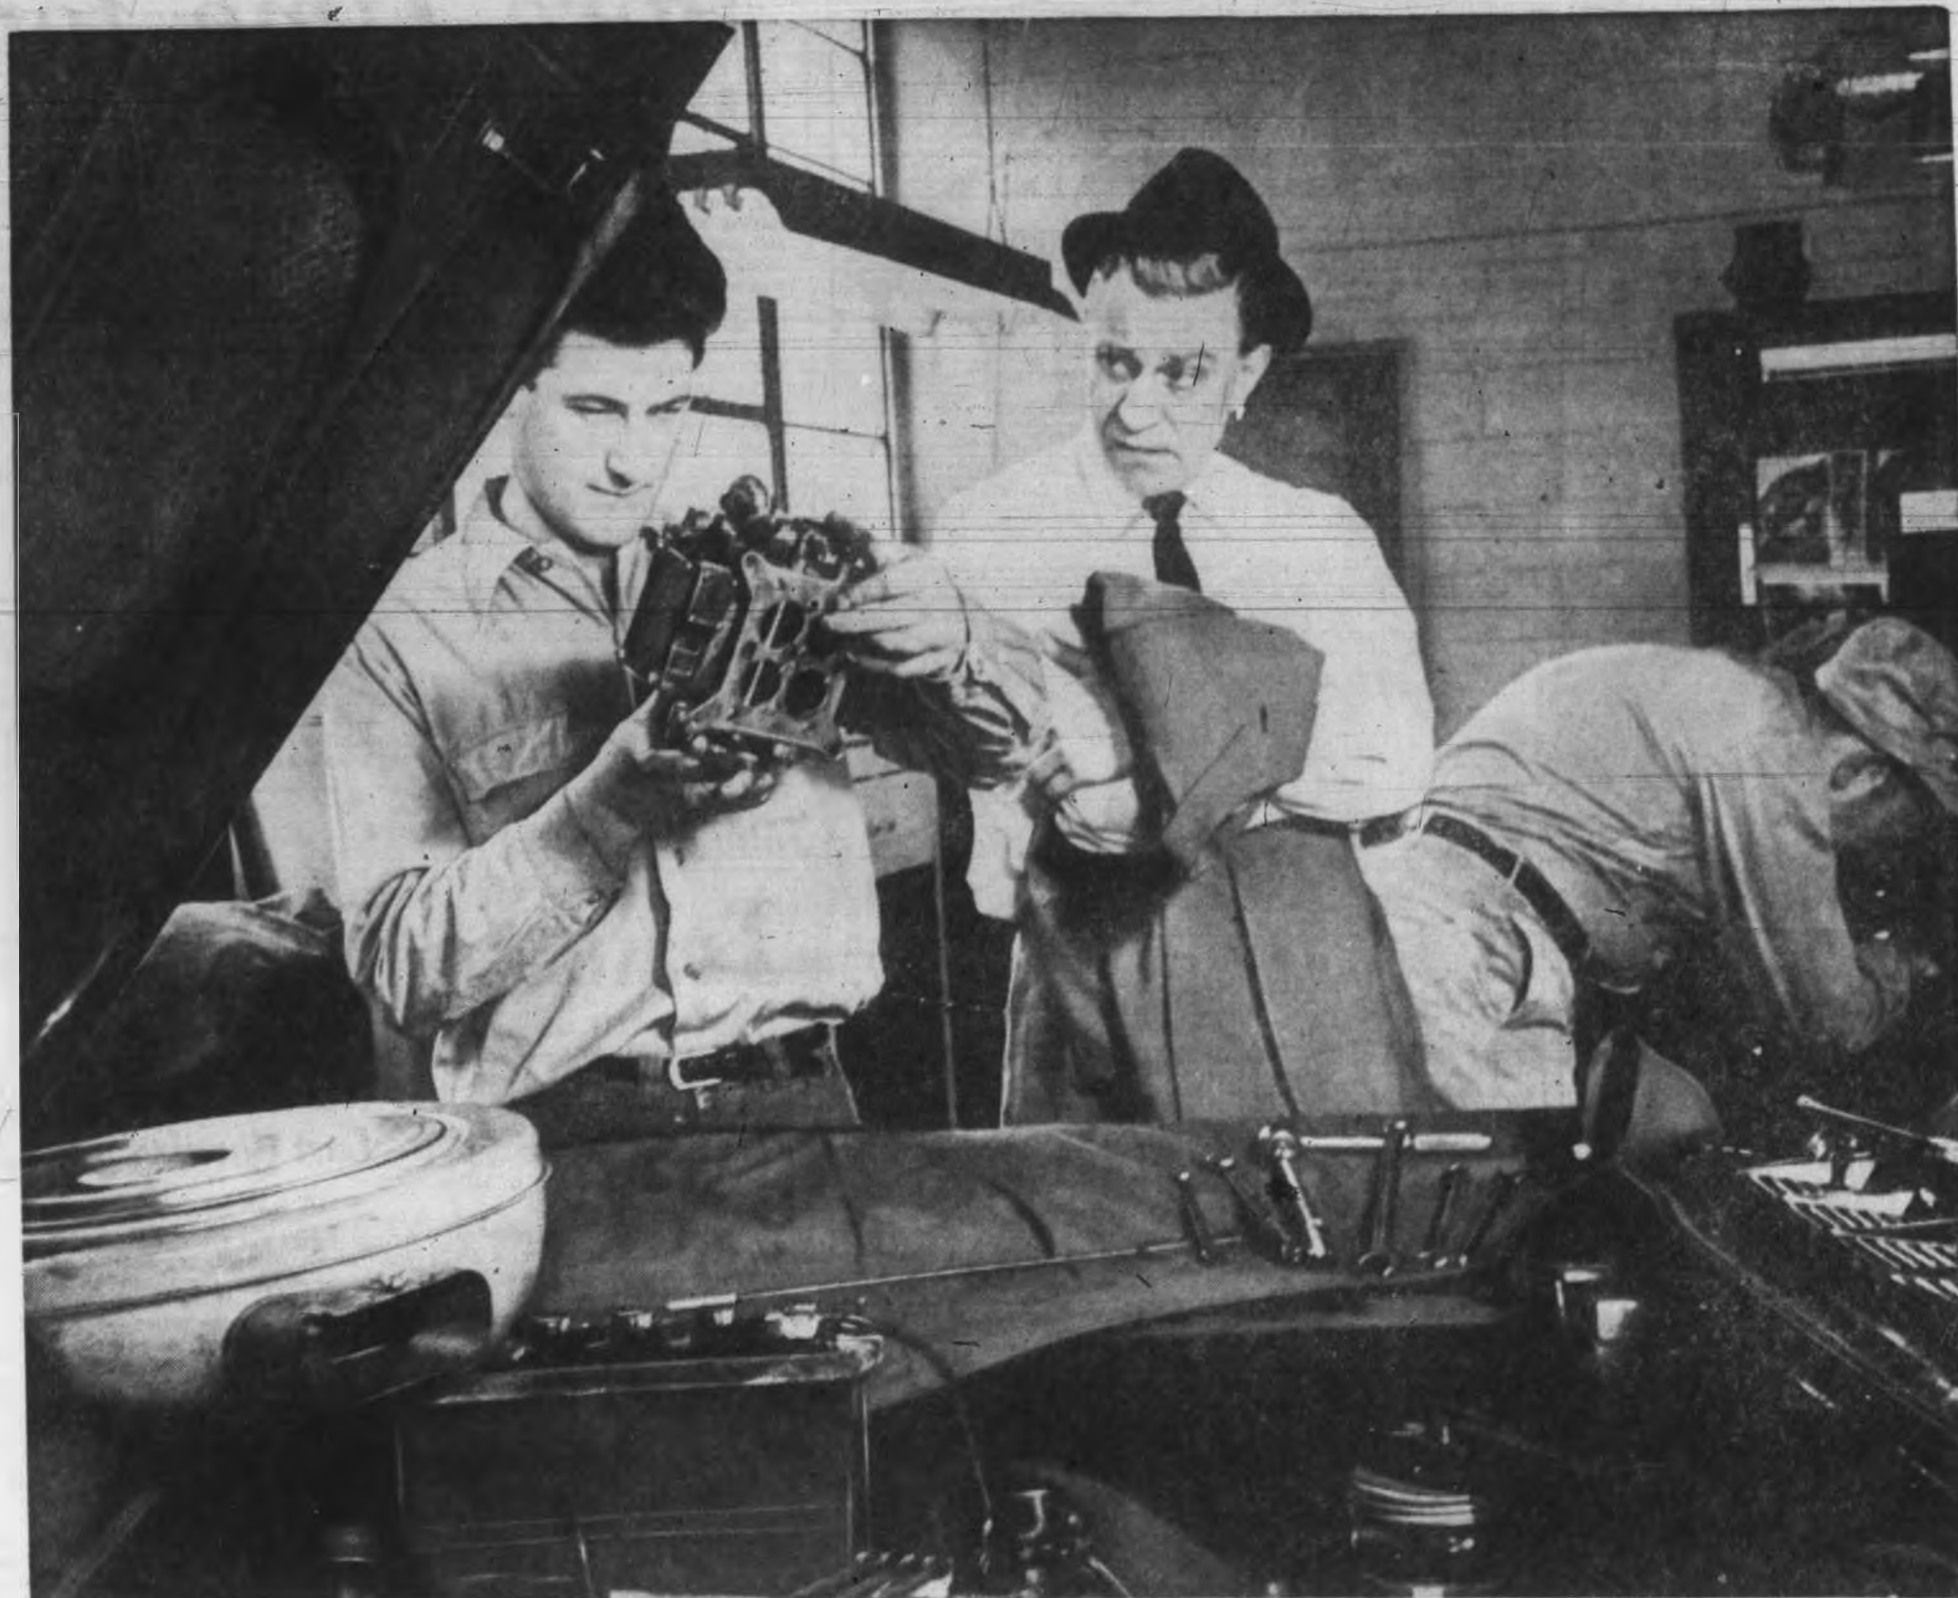

PAU, France — Police rescued singer-guitarist Sacha Distel in a patrol wagon after the French teen-age idol was mobbed by screaming fans. He is a former boyfriend of Brigitte Bardot.

TOKYO — The Canadian embassy granted the first Alcan Asia Limited scholarship for a Japanese student to study in Canada to 31-year-old official of the Japanese ministry of international trade and industry, Koichi Kubota, a graduate of the economics department at Tokyo University.

TOKYO — Nicholas Goldschmidt, artistic and managing director of the Vancouver International Festival, arrived in Peking. Goldschmidt was invited by the Chinese Peoples Association for cultural relations.

INDIANAPOLIS — State auditor Dorothy Gardner reported an offer by a Chicago management consultant firm to show Indiana how to save money at a cost of $10,000. She said she saved Indiana $10,000 by turning it down.

MONTREAL — Four Israeli students, winners of scholarships established by Toronto publisher John Bassett, arrived Monday for four years of study in Canada. Judith Rotem of Haifa and Yair Frenkel of Ramat Hashikim will attend Bishop's University in Lennoxville, Que. David Efraty of Tel Aviv and Michael Rosenbaum of Karkur will attend the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton.

If gum were to get into your carburetor, it could lead to unexpected repairs like this. One of the nine ingredients in today's Super Shell fights gum to give you top performance.

GUM:

Gasoline gum used to cause unexpected repair bills. Today, one of Super Shell's 9 ingredients fights off gum —to save you money and give you top performance.

The gum preventive in today's Super Shell is so powerful that one thousandth of an ounce is enough to treat a whole gallon. Read what this remarkable "chemical policeman" does to make costly gum problems a thing of the past.

THE MECHANIC in our picture is about to go to work on a gummed-up carburetor. A costly repair job.

But as far as Shell scientists are concerned, the carburetor gum problem is ancient history. And so are all the other troubles that used to be caused by gum in gasoline. Like sticky intake valves. And fouled automatic chokes.

How Super Shell fights gum

Shell's gum prevention programme starts at the refinery. Careful refining processes keep potential gum-forming components to a minimum.

But, Shell scientists know that, in time, even the purest gasoline can form gum (see test, right). And that's why they include a powerful gum preventive in Super Shell's nine-ingredient formula.

"Chemical Cop" at work

The gum preventive in today's Super Shell is so effective that a thousandth of an ounce is enough to treat a gallon.

This remarkable ingredient has been described as a "chemical policeman." It helps keep unstable elements in the gasoline from sticking together—just the way a skilled policeman prevents trouble by keeping a crowd from forming.

Here are the 9 ingredients in Super Shell—and what they do to give your car top performance

- #1 is TCP* for power, mileage, and longer plug life.
- #2 is mixed pentanes for fast warm-ups.
- #3 is anti-knock mix to resist all kinds of knocks.
- #4 is heavy alkanes to control "high-speed knock."
- #5 is butane for quick starts.
- #6 is "cat-cracked" gasoline—for extra power.
- #7 is an "anti-icer" to help prevent icing stalls when cold weather strikes.
- #8 is gum preventive to keep carburetors clean inside.
- #9 is Platformate for extra mileage.

Garden Notes

More Time for Golf

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Flowering shrubs are enjoying a tremendous wave of popularity these days, chiefly, I think, because they cut down the work in the garden, leaving more time for golf, fishing, and just plain loafing. One difficulty, though, is that most of our common flowering shrubs do their blooming in the spring and early summer, leaving the garden colorless the rest of the year, or at least until the berries and fruits appear.

You have to look around a bit to find shrubs that bloom late in the season. I gave you the dope on one of them yesterday—Hibiscus syriacus, nicknamed Rose of Sharon. Another, and one that has the most striking appearance of all the late bloomers, is the California tree poppy, Romneya coulteri.

Imagine, if you can, a great white poppy, five inches across, with petals like thin silk, crimped and crumpled, and in the centre, a mass of golden stamens. The flowers have a pleasing, although not very powerful fragrance, too, and even the leaves are attractive, with a bluish-green tinge to them.

The plant blooms for several months, usually from late July to September, and a well-established specimen, six or eight feet tall, covered all over with these huge flowers, is really something to stop you dead in your tracks.

The California tree poppy grows freely enough once it is settled down in a position to its liking, but it isn't easy to get it going. For one thing, it detests any disturbance of its roots, and for this reason, it is best to buy your plant in a pot and plant it with the ball of roots unbroken. It may be planted in the spring or fall, but it should be placed where it can be left undisturbed for years, and where it may be allowed to grow to its full proportions.

A Romneya may eventually occupy quite a bit of space, as it tends to "run at the root" as it settles down; and every year it will be a little wider and a little taller. In the course of time, you will have an impressive mass of the bluish foliage, belaguered all over with the great white crinkled poppies.

In its native home, southern California, Romneya grows in full sun, and is never exposed for long to frosts or to very damp conditions. This far north, it is essential to give it full exposure to the sun, and to make sure the drainage is beyond reproach, for the fleshy roots will rot in a soggy, low-lying site. A sandy loam soil will suit admirably. In a severe winter, the topgrowth may be cut to the ground, but the plant will sprout again from the roots and always seems to make a good comeback.

For some reason which I do not understand, I have never been able to get a cutting of Romneya to strike—a slip will simply stand still, doing nothing at all and producing no roots. The plant isn't easy to grow from seed either—in nature, seedlings spring up freely in burnt-over ground, but are reluctant starters elsewhere.

However, the shrub can be increased fairly easily by root cuttings. You burrow down and cut off a bit of root about two inches long. This is planted right side up in sandy soil in a coldframe or propagating case, and pretty soon the young shoots will emerge. It is always best to grow the young plant in a pot until it is big enough to go into its permanent quarters.

Train to Different Worlds

PARIS—The old Orient Express, from which Alfred Hitchcock's lady vanished, scene of a score of movies and plays, is finished, killed by the Iron Curtain, but the Orient-Simplon Express still runs from Paris to Istanbul and back, crossing a half-dozen borders on the way.

If you catch it from Belgrade en route to Paris as I did, you must get up very early because it leaves Belgrade exactly on time at 4:59 a.m. Even at that hour, the station swarms with humanity, old women in rags, young men in faded blue denim, clusters of family, the air reeks of poverty, which has its own smell.

Soon, the train is belting through the Yugoslav countryside in blinding sunshine.

The villages are made up of white-washed cottages, with brown slate roofs. Picturesque from a train window but I'd hate to live in one. Through the open window the heavenly smells of hay and manure and sunshine. On the other side of Zagreb, the Sava, a tributary of the Danube, runs swift and brown. The flat fields are replaced by wooded hills.

The train passes a platoon of Yugoslav cavalry on prancing horses, conceivably the last cavalry on earth, pulling a tiny cannon. Off to fight the Crimean war, I suppose. The Yugoslav army is in great demand by the movie crowd. It's the subject of many gags but I notice Khrushchev won't tangle with it.

For an express, the Orient-Simplon stops at many little towns and the littler they are the better I like their stations. Flowers in baskets, hanging from the slate roof. Sometimes a little grove of trees with chairs and tables for the loafers to sit and stare.

The farewells are emotional. Twenty-five thousand young men and women flee Yugoslavia, either legally or illegally, every year to more hopeful lands like Australia or Canada.

Kisses and embraces and tears between the fierce-eyed young men and the young girls in print dresses with plaits down their back. The old folks wave and wave until you can't see them any more.

The Yugoslav border guards come in, unsmiling, threadbare, to ask for my passport. I try a smile. They don't smile back.

At Poggioreale Campagna, Italian border guards come in in their white uniforms and white caps. Much cleaner, politer. I'm a traveller, not an enemy of the people. Almost immediately, the countryside is Italianate.

The train is climbing into the hills now. White stone fences divide the fields, line the roads, giving the land a three-dimensional rectangularity. Speeding new cars on macadam in place of white dirt.

Soon the Adriatic stretches out blue-grey to the right of the train.

We enter Trieste—first the old port with its quaint, pastel-shade houses, then into the new station, very modern. No flowers, no loafers, no nonsense. We're back in the 20th century.

Past Trieste the countryside is domesticated, manicured, well-tended, rich, much different from the untamed (and not at all unattractive) wildness of Yugoslavia. Night falls and we're in Venice—the lights shining on the water.

During the night the train passes through Switzerland, robbing us of some spectacular views. I awake in France. The houses are grey with red roofs and round towers, clustered together cheek by jowl in the villages. The meadows are green with grass, the roads lined with evenly spaced trees.

Presently the Lyon river, lined with poplars of uniform height, which broadens into the Seine. Then at 9:25 a.m., exactly on time, we are in Paris, wearing her fall colors already, the leaves in the Tuilleries laced with yellows and reds, and looking, as always, serenely beautiful, even in the rain.

Hollywood Today

Bad Feeling on the Road

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Because of the bad feeling between Joan Collins and Dorothy Lamour, the producer of "Road to Hong Kong" is making sure Joan will not be working when Dorothy films her night-club sequence with Bob Hope and Bing Crosby. Since stars often make guest appearances in pictures, so Dorothy should gladly pocket her $25,000 and shake hands with Joan.

Glenn Ford's dinner guest (other night) was Adlai Stevenson. And about the only subject they did not discuss was Hollywood.

I have a suggestion for the ending of "A Very Private Affair," cinematic version of Brigitte Bardot's life story. Why not have her retiring from her career into happy oblivion? That is what BE insists she will do.

The son of the best Tarzan over the years—Johnny Weissmuller—Johnny Jr., now is 20 years old. Why not sign him to play the part now Gordon Scott has left the series?

The village built at Lake Arrowhead for Metro's long-ago "Rose Marie" is still there. Recently, as a group of teenagers paddled past, the guide told them: "This is where Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy made the film. 'Who?' a youngster asked.

Danny Thomas assures me his TV show will be in production for at least another year. He was talking last year of retiring. But the sale of the segment's already used—for $1,000,000, seems to have whetted Danny's appetite for more work—and more millions.

Frank Sinatra has a friend in singer Bob Anthony, who was raised with Frankie in Hoboken, N.J. Anthony was offered $5,000 by a magazine to write about Sinatra as a kid. "But I refused and told them to get lost. Frank has been a good friend and helped me get the job as vice-president of Maze Records."

Forrest Tucker has been on the road for three years with "The Music Man." But the end is in sight for him—for a while anyway. Forrest is expected in Hollywood this month for a long vacation.

The reason Paul Newman accepted the vignette in "Adventures of a Young Man" was because he played the same part five years ago on television. "It was kine-scope, and I want to compare myself." I think he will find he has improved.

I'm looking forward to seeing Mort Sahl play a reporter in "Advise and Consent." And if I can get to Washington to see him in action, I will. This will be Mort's first movie since he swore off the medium.

Shirley MacLaine was wise to call off all movies for the rest of the year. And rest. The vivacious actress has bounced from one picture to another non-stop for three years now. You can overdo a good thing, Shirley.

Sean Flynn, handsome son of the late Errol, has put his foot down. "Everyone who interviews me," says the young actor, "merely wants to talk about my father. If they want to write about me, fine, but I refuse to talk about Dad any more. I stand or fall on my own."

Early Governments Appalled

Over $1,000,000

Defence Funds Often Sidetracked

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Early Canadian governments were appalled by defence expenditures of more than $1,000,000. In fact, they sometimes did their best to divert defence funds to other projects altogether.

Heavens knows what they would have thought of the $1,620,000,000 defence budget which the Commons was to begin debating Monday night.

The first Canadian Defence Act was passed in 1868. It provided £1,100,000 for defence works. Not a penny was spent for this purpose, however. All the money went for railway construction instead.

In 1910, the gavy was established. A $13,000,000 naval construction program was projected but the government changed and the program was thrown out.

In the same year, a 700-man battalion of the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada went to England to train. The commanding officer of the unit paid all expenses.

In 1913, the Senate rejected Sir Robert Borden's $35,000,000 naval construction program. In 1919 after the First World War, the Militia Act was amended to provide for a permanent force of 10,000 instead of 5,000. The amendment was never put into effect. Lord Jellicoe visited Canada and recommended construction of fleet units involving annual expenditures up to $25,000,000. No action was taken.

In 1920, the Canadian air force was established. First year's appropriation was $2,250,000.

Up to 1939 and the outbreak of the Second World War, defence spending was still less than $20,000,000 annually.

A Couple of the Boys Were Whooping It Up

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Police said Monday a couple of boys had a wonderful time tossing things into the Thompson River from the Overlanders Bridge just to hear the splash.

Before they were caught they had dropped seven metal fence posts, two lamp pole bases and a large oxygen cylinder valued at $100.

The parents of the youngsters, aged eight and five, were charged.

Won't Let World Be Swept Aside John D. Pledges

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Monday the time has come for the United Nations to consider the "internationalizing" of Berlin under the UN.

In a Commons foreign policy speech, he also suggested Berlin's status be secured by a UN "presence" there.

Mr. Diefenbaker said this proposal wouldn't receive the support of Soviet Premier Khrushchev but it would at least bring about a step forward. If Big Four negotiations fail to which the UN could give its attention.

RESERVED ISSUE

The prime minister said Berlin is part of the German peace settlement and this is reserved to the four powers concerned — Britain, the U.S., France and Russia.

But if the Big Four decided to ask the UN for help, the issue could be brought before the UN. Premier Khrushchev had said he would not be averse to this if the four powers agreed.

BEFORE MANKIND

Canada had a right and responsibility to place its views "before mankind."

If a decision on Berlin were left to the Big Four without suggestions from the smaller nations, the moral responsibility would remain with the latter for not advancing views.

Canada had made a number of important suggestions which could not be disclosed now.

WON'T SIT BACK

Mr. Diefenbaker also said the West must show the Kremlin "we will not sit back and let the world we believe in be swept aside."

"The hour demands moral strength and courage."

"Panic is the refuge of weakness. Confidence can be a weapon of peace. Communism breeds on weakness."

NOT FOR NATO

Mr. Diefenbaker said that if it had not been for NATO, "we might not be here today."

"We must speak words of measured carefulness so as not to add to the fires that today are burning."

He said Canadian foreign policy has three main aims:

- Continued support for the United Nations "without which peace cannot be achieved."

- A strong and effective NATO.

- Expansion of a strong Commonwealth. No other agency possessed a greater influence for good.

More for 'Have Nots' Pearson Plea

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada isn't doing enough to help the "have not" nations of the world, Opposition Leader Pearson said Monday night in the Commons.

Foreign aid is the best contribution Canada can make to the security and stability of the world, he declared. Mr. Pearson said no country of the world has been doing enough to help the poor nations. Despite the enormous aid programs of recent years, the gap between the rich nations and the "slum" countries was widening.

Praising Canada's conduct of its aid program, he said the nations getting assistance from Canada feel there are no strings attached. It was given in a spirit of co-operation and understanding.

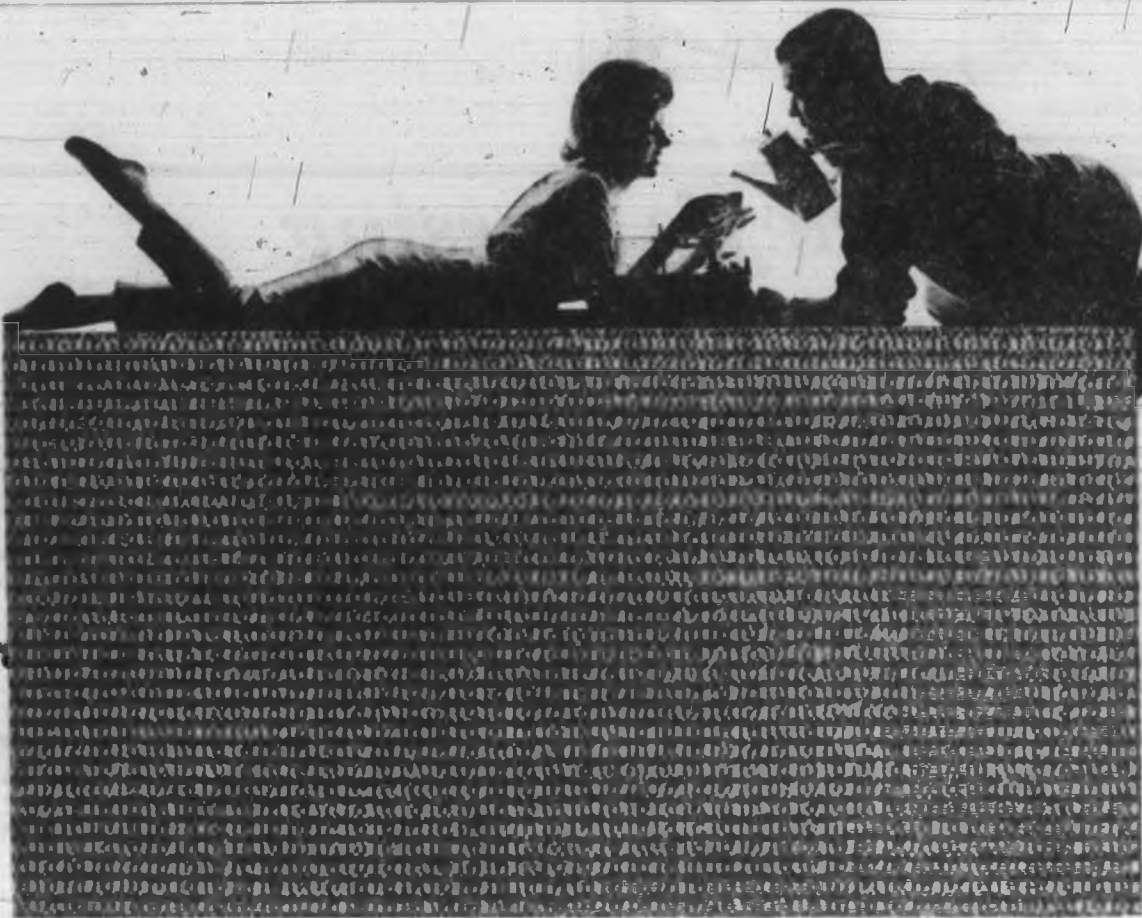

But he suggested direct aid from one country to another is the wrong way of doing it. The multi-lateral approach, with several nations supplying a common aid fund for one region was the best way.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) said foreign aid is the best way to create a foundation for future peace.

PWA Applies For Routes

EDMONTON (CP) — Pacific Western Airlines has applied to the air transport board to take over prairie feeder routes which Trans-Canada Air Lines wants to release. Edmonton-Calgary route is principal service sought by the line.

The Broadmoor Club in Seattle is host this week to some of the world's greatest golfers, when it stages the Greater Seattle Open Invitational.

The Professional Golfers Association of America will furnish 50 leading players—including Arnold Palmer and Gary Player—in a 72-hole medal event starting on Thursday and ending Saturday. On Wednesday the pros will take part with 150 amateurs in a pro-amateur warm-up event.

It is the first time in 16 years that the top professional players have appeared in the Seattle area.

Gorge Vale golfer Tommy Fallon does not think much of the view expressed by a couple of well-known B.C. amateurs that Canada could have put up a better show against the U.S. in the recent Walker Cup match than Britain did.

He doubts if Canada could have put up a team that would stand up to the defeated British, let alone the Americans.

The Gorge Vale man expresses the view that the U.S. team was about the strongest ever mustered. He notes that Coe was twice U.S. amateur champion and runner-up to Player in the Masters; there were three U.S. and three British Amateur champions in the side as well as others who reigned as state champions or runners-up in national events.

Even a professional team would have trouble with that little lot, he declares, and maybe he is right.

With John Merriman still going strongly in the Gorge Vale club championship it may not be possible to restart the City Buttons matches for another week or two. John and Art Donaldson are the holders, and they are due to make their first defence of the season against a team to be chosen by the Uplands Golf Club.

The junior buttons are also due to be restarted and district secretary Leo Derman at Gorge Vale will be glad to have written applications from pairs wanting to take part in the event.

The qualifications are that the players must be under 21 years of age and both must be members of the same club.

Gordon Fellow took another important stride towards winning the Uplands championship for a second year in succession. In Sunday's semi-finals Gordon beat Al Reside, but had to go to the last hole to win the verdict, and this weekend he will meet Fred Hanson in the final.

Ranson, who played fine golf to outlast Junior Peter Gillan in the other semi-final, has never won the Uplands title, but he is one of the toughest match players in the club and has a good record for them in the Inter club league.

Larry Palmgren topped the field of 79 golfers to win the Malton Trophy at Gorge Vale Sunday. Playing over his own course, Palmgren shot 85-65 to finish two strokes ahead of the next best.

Runners-up spot was shared by Dick Freeman, Gorge Vale, 75-67; G. Sinner, Gorge Vale, 78-67, and Rucky Kent, Royal Colwood, 77-67.

Warren Cameron, Gorge Vale, was next with 76-68.

Low gross was John Merriman with 72, and W. Wightman with 73.

Long delayed final of the "B" club championship at Victoria is to be played Saturday. Finalists are Don Wagg and Jim Cathro.

Quarter finals of the Gorge Vale club due to be played Sunday are Jim McCall, Jr. vs. Jack Storrie; John Merriman vs. Earl Francis; John Carlow vs. Bill Wightman and Vince Wheatley vs. Hugh Fletcher.

Ten members of the Vancouver Island senior golfers' association took part in the B.C. Seniors' autumn tournament at Burquitlam. Prize winner among the visiting Islanders was John Redpath.

Speaking Briefly

Oh, Those Women Drivers!

Sudden roar from passing car driven by a woman caused Tacoma professional Chuck Congdon one nervous moment and possible $500 first money in the B.C. golf open at Chilliwack Sunday.

Bob Duden, Portland, won the event with a birdie three on the second extra hole of a sudden-death playoff. Congdon was lining up his 10-foot putt for a possible equalizing birdie when the sudden noise caused him to start and just nudge his golf ball. Everybody's attention was diverted at the moment and Congdon called the stroke on himself.

Faloney's Passing Snaps Esk Streak

HAMILTON — The rejuvenated Hamilton Tiger-Cats, spurred by another fine performance by quarterback Bernie Faloney, whipped Edmonton Eskimos, 32-15, before a record crowd of 26,646 fans here last night to stand alone as the only undefeated team in the Canadian Football League.

Faloney, the man who almost got away from the T-Cats when they tried to trade him to Montreal earlier this year, tossed three touchdown passes and ran for a touchdown himself to personally engineer the defeat of the club that got him started as a professional.

It was the first defeat in eight games for the Eskimos, who are four points ahead of Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Western Conference. For the T-Cats, it marked the fifth victory in as many games, and this biggest win of the lot labelled them as the power club in the Eastern Conference again.

They are now two points ahead of Ottawa's defending champions and six up on Toronto Argonauts, who whipped Saskatchewan Roughriders 27-7 Sunday in Toronto.

Faloney, who led Eskies to the Grey Cup title in 1954 and 1955, ignored 85-degree heat with a spirited performance, hitting Hal Patterson twice and Paul Dekker once with touchdown passes. He set up his touchdown with his running and passing, and completed a fine night's work with a single. He also completed 18 of 27 passes for 336 yards and was the game's leading rusher with 94 yards in 17 carries.

Sharing the glory was halfback Don Sutherland, who converted all four touchdowns, kicked a 26-yard field goal, and intercepted four passes by Don Getty to kill off Edmonton rallies.

Halfback Johnny Bright scored Edmonton's first touchdown and Ron Dundas, flown in especially to help the injured Eskies, took a nine-yard pass from Getty for the other after Hamilton had built up a 31-8 lead. Vic Chapman kicked a first-quarter single that gave Eskies a brief lead, and Jackie Parker converted both touchdowns.

Cookie Gilchrist, Dick Shatto, Jim Rountree and Robin Rouse scored touchdowns for Argos, who went ahead 20-7 in the first half. Punter Dave Mann kicked three singles.

Jack Gotta took a 31-yard pass from Dave Grant for Riders' only touchdown.

Halback Carver Shannon, a regular in the Winnipeg Blue Bombers' backfield for two years, found himself without a job Sunday as Bombers got down to the Canadian Football League player limit.

The former Southern Illinois speedster was dropped along with tackle Don Kaczmarek of University of North Dakota to allow Bombers to cut to 34 players—15 imports and 19 Canadians.

"We know he's a good football player," coach Bud Grant said of Shannon, who has 22 points this season. "He's big and fast and strong, but he has never been able to make the big play for us."

Lions Suspend Robinson

Move Up Dave Skrien

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wayne Robinson, coach of the last-place British Columbia Lions, was suspended Monday night.

His place was taken by Dave Skrien, 32, backfield coach, and the first man hired by Robinson when he came to the Lions from Winnipeg Blue Bombers where he had been assistant coach Bud Grant.

A statement issued by Alan Eyre, executive member of the western football conference club, after 6½ hours of meetings, said:

"The board of directors of the B.C. Lions Football Club today suspended coach Wayne Robinson from his duties with the western conference team and appointed backfield coach Dave Skrien as coach of this western conference entry. President Ralph Henderson said the move was made as a result of the poor performance of the team to date."

Robinson replaced Dan Edwards in 1959. Edwards had taken over from Clem Crowe midway through the 1959 season. Crowe had been with the team since 1956, taking over from Annis Stukus who was the team's first pilot.

Robinson was assistant coach for Winnipeg Blue Bombers before coming here. He brought Skrien with him at Minnesota when Robinson picked him up.

Robinson, a native of Minneapolis, played professional football with Philadelphia Eagles until 1957 when he went to Winnipeg as assistant coach to coach Bud Grant.

Skrien was a teammate of Robinson's on the University of Minnesota squad of 1949 and 1950.

In 1953 he performed in the backfield for Saskatchewan Roughriders and the Blue Bombers and it was his interception of an Edmonton pass in the last two minutes of the final game of the western playoff of that year that put Winnipeg into the Grey Cup final.

picked him up.

Robinson, a native of Minneapolis, played professional football with Philadelphia Eagles until 1957 when he went to Winnipeg as assistant coach to coach Bud Grant.

Skrien was a teammate of Robinson's on the University of Minnesota squad of 1949 and 1950.

In 1953 he performed in the backfield for Saskatchewan Roughriders and the Blue Bombers and it was his interception of an Edmonton pass in the last two minutes of the final game of the western playoff of that year that put Winnipeg into the Grey Cup final.

Skrien was assistant coach at Minnesota when Robinson

picked him up.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wayne Robinson, coach of the last-place British Columbia Lions, was suspended Monday night.

His place was taken by Dave Skrien, 32, backfield coach, and the first man hired by Robinson when he came to the Lions from Winnipeg Blue Bombers where he had been assistant coach Bud Grant.

A statement issued by Alan Eyre, executive member of the western football conference club, after 6½ hours of meetings, said:

"The board of directors of the B.C. Lions Football Club today suspended coach Wayne Robinson from his duties with the western conference team and appointed backfield coach Dave Skrien as coach of this western conference entry. President Ralph Henderson said the move was made as a result of the poor performance of the team to date."

Robinson replaced Dan Edwards in 1959. Edwards had taken over from Clem Crowe midway through the 1959 season. Crowe had been with the team since

Car Racing Ban Demanded Driver, 12 Spectators Killed

MONZA, Italy (AP)—A shocked outcry for a limit on automobile racing arose in Italy Monday after a blood-red Ferrari car shot into a crowd of spectators Sunday, killing 12 persons and its famous driver, Count Wolfgang von Trips.

Eleven spectators died at the scene. The 12th died in hospital.

Twenty-five others were injured.

The handsome German, leading contender for the 1961 world drivers' championship, was smashed to death beneath his car on the second lap of the Grand Prix of Italy.

The veering car rocketed through a guard rail at more than 100 miles an hour and plowed into spectators jammed elbow to elbow.

Other racers continued to roar around the super-speed track for two hours past the crumpled dead, sprawled at the track side by side and covered with newspapers. Ambulances took the injured to hospitals.

The toll was as high as the accident in 1957 which doomed the Mille Miglia, long Italy's great and often blood-stained open road race.

In that accident, the Spanish Marquis de Portago's car plowed into a group of roadside spectators killing de Portago, his United States co-driver and 10 others.

In the outcry which followed, open road racing in Italy was banned and the Mille Miglia since has been whittled down to a speed-limit auto rally.

The same cries were being heard Monday against track racing.

The Monza race—and the world championship—was won by Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif., in a Ferrari like Von Trips'.

Hill did not know anyone had been killed in the accident.

After the race he stood beaming with joy as the U.S. national anthem was played for his victory. Then he learned about the dead.

He turned white with shock and collapsed on a bench. Companions led him away. He was too stunned to speak.

Hydro Racer Flips to Death

DETROIT (AP)—Bob Hayward of Embro, Ont., soft-spoken and cautious king of powerboat racing, died of a broken neck Sunday after he sent his Super II into a fatal roll on the Detroit River.

Hayward, champion of unlimited-class hydroplane racing who brought Canada the famed Harnsworth trophy for the last three years, died instantly.

He had attempted to squeeze Miss Superette between two boats and into the lead on the first turn of the second heat of the Silver Cup Regatta.

Witnesses at the first turn and pit area said Hayward's speeding boat flipped when he tried to work her between Seattle's Century 21 and Detroit's Miss U.S. I, leaders of the heat.

The remaining heats of the 45-mile race were cancelled.

Miss Bardahl of Seattle, driven by Ron Musson, was declared Silver Cup champion for winning the first section of the first heat with an average speed of 108.089 m.p.h.

Such Crust, driven by Fred Alter of Detroit, placed second, winning the section with 88.084.

Century 21, the Gold Cup winner from Seattle driven by Bill Muncey, was third.

The answers to everyday insurance problems

QUESTION:

When you buy a house is it absolutely necessary to get your insurance from the firm that handles the mortgage?

ANSWER:

Certainly not. You just inform the lender or mortgage firm that you want the Fire insurance placed through an insurance agency of your choice. You name the agent and that's all there is to it.

'We Must Face Up To Russia'

By GORDON DONALDSON

In the United States prepared to make war on Berlin, Reporter Gordon Donaldson feared the U.S. is moving the mood of the country in a direction that would lead to a second world war.

PRINCETON, N.J. (TNS)—Princeton dozed in the sun. The university was shut and the advanced thinkers were thinking elsewhere. Left behind were 25,000 ordinary thinkers in their trim, red-brick town.

What were they thinking about as their country moved to what looked like the edge of war?

Editor Fred Osborne, grey-haired, short and serious, was scanning proofs of his twice weekly Princeton Herald when I asked the question.

"There's no defeatism here," he said staunchly. "Nobody talks about the crisis much but everybody agrees we must face up to the Russians."

"If it means war, then that's up to the federal government."

More Than Fighting

This means more than fighting if American troops are attacked in Berlin, as to the churches, the cellars or Prime Minister Diefenbaker has said Canada is obliged to do. It means the U.S. would fire the first shot.

Will this happen? A startling 60 per cent reportedly believe Berlin will lead to a fighting war. And two out of three of these recognize that a fighting war means an all-out war; and there can be no half measures in the middle of Europe.

If this is true, nearly half the American population expects to be atom-bombed and die, probably before Christmas.

They Don't Think

"People are quite fatalistic about it — they don't think. Sure, they know about nuclear bombs but they can't comprehend just what they mean because very few of them have ever seen war or had any idea what it's like."

"The time to have made war was in the Truman or early Eisenhower days but the country wasn't conditioned then to think of the Russians as our enemies and the government was full of left-wing ers and traitors like Alger Hiss.

"Now these have been weeded out and destroyed — they no longer dare influence events. It was impossible to get a war fever going then but it is now. A few weeks of propaganda by mass media can condition the masses and stir them up. They'll fight — isolated packets of them will fight on after the cities are gone . . ."

"What can be done about it? Nothing. We have no say . . ."

Sane and Intelligent

This type of thinking has been studied by the American Psychological Association. Dr. Howard Gruber of the University of Colorado, points out: "the peculiar thing about this collectivity of death is that the individuals preparing for it are for the most part individually sane and intelligent."

"The individuals are sound but the combination is sick." And Dr. Ronald Michael, of

Red Cross Asks Help for Burma

GENEVA (Reuters) — The Burma Red Cross appealed Monday for international emergency relief for 200,000 victims of Burma's worst flooding in 25 years, the International Red Cross announced here.

the Peace Research Institute says if nations act like individuals, war may be touched off by a sense of frustration, inadequacy and guilt.

"Frustration, Inadequacy and Guilt" makes an uninspiring battle-cry with which to lead the masses to nuclear slaughter. But there is a worse one — money.

The cheerful view of war was neatly put in a recent New York Herald-Tribune headline — "Wall Street's Answer to Khrushchev — Stocks Up."

The observation that wars are good for business is considered sick cynicism in Europe where they know all about war but it is quite acceptable here. No bomb has ever fallen on an American home. Wars have been good for business and the last big one brought an undamaged U.S. to the position of world leadership.

Kenya for Africans Jomo Kenyatta Claim

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Kenya nationalist leader Jomo Kenyatta claimed all Kenya land for Africans and said if Kenya did not get freedom at once, "we are going to take it."

Kenyatta, freed in mid-August after nearly nine years imprisonment and detention on charges of leading the bloody Mau Mau uprising of the early 1950's, told 70,000 cheering Africans at a rally here: "God gave us this country, and we are keeping it. For Africa," he said.

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers' Union Monday shut down most of General Motors Corporation's 130 U.S. plants in a strike that union president Walter Reuther described as "99 per cent about working conditions."

GM vice-president Louis Seaton called it a needless strike because the company and union reached essential agreement on wages and benefits six days ago.

BROKE DOWN

Negotiations at the national and local levels on production standards and working conditions broke down after an all-night bargaining session.

Promptly at 11 a.m.—the union's strike deadline—thousands of UAW members began leaving their jobs at GM plants. Not all of the company's 325,000 hourly workers walked out. Some stayed on the job at plants where week-end agreements were made on local working conditions.

The walkouts also posed a threat to Canadian GMI operations. A spokesman said that if the U.S. strike becomes complete, production at the big Oshawa, Ont., plant would taper off sharply next week as supplies normally brought from the U.S. run out.

In its British homeland, where more little cars are sold than anywhere else in the world, Anglia outsells every other car, regardless of size or make! Reasons? British craftsmanship is the main one. British engineers and designers developed Anglia to be the best car in its class. They did it so well Anglia is in a class by itself. Proof? Style for one thing. From gleaming front grille to raked-back roof, Anglia proves that a little car needn't be homely. Performance is another. In gruelling road rallies held around the world Anglia has developed a habit. Baronet-Bishop Dies in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sir Francis Cooke Caulfield Heathcote, 93, ninth baronet of Hursley and retired Anglican bishop of New Westminster, died Monday.

Sir Francis succeeded to his title in 1937 on the death of a distant relative in England. Rather than leave his beloved Vancouver he sold the English estate.

LOWER MAINLAND

Sir Francis, who came to Canada in 1884, became bishop of New Westminster at the age of 72 in 1941 and retired 10 years later. His diocese covered the British Columbia lower mainland.

He was ordained a deacon at Trinity University in Toronto in 1891 and became a minister a year later. He remained in Toronto until 1903 when he was appointed minister of All Saints Church in Winnipeg. He came to Vancouver in 1913.

NO CHILDREN

Rev. Godfrey Gower, present bishop of New Westminster, said: "There's so many things one can say about such a greatly beloved man. He made a great contribution to the life of the church in B.C."

Bishop Gower will conduct funeral services Thursday.

13 Old $18 Debt Met for Britain

Who'll Pay $756,000 Interest?

LONDON (UPI) — Britain refused to pay a 183-year-old U.S. debt but the Chancellor of the Exchequer said he would fork over the $18 out of his own pocket.

Selwyn Lloyd said he will not pay the $270,000 ($756,000) which a Philadelphia church claims is owed in interest.

Lloyd suggested the church try to get the interest out of the U.S. government or the state of Pennsylvania.

The debt was incurred by a troop of redcoat soldiers of Queen Elizabeth's great-great-grandfather, King George III. The redcoats ripped up the church's fence for firewood in 1778 during the revolution and an officer promised to pay $18.

The rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, Rev. Joseph Koch, recently sent a bill for the $18 and the interest to Britain.

In a letter to Koch, Lloyd said "Pennsylvania was at that time a British colonial territory."

"The convention is that claims by the citizens of colonial territories against the dependence, lie against the successor government, which have not cesser government."

Abortions 'Murder' ---Archbishop

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Roman Catholic archbishop of Vancouver says the church regards abortion as murder and newspapers are imprudent in carrying articles about the subject.

ALSO MOTHER

Most Rev. W. M. Duke said: "To make abortion legal would undoubtedly increase the killing of children and often times also the mother."

"It would recall to the minds of all the cruel edict of King Herod by which in order to find and kill the Child Jesus, all the men children that were in Bethlehem ... from two years and under were put to death."

He said abortion violated the Fifth Commandment: "Thou shalt not kill."

FORBID SIGNS

"Those who by their own willingness and fault have to bear an illegitimate child in or out of wedlock have also broken the law of God in the Sixth and Ninth commandments, which forbid all signs against the virtue of purity."

"They should not add to their guilt the sin of murder."

Columbia 'Dead' By Year's End If B.C. Holds Out

OTTAWA (UPI)—The federal government figures it has until the end of the year to reach agreement with B.C. on the Columbia River before facing a go-it-alone attitude from the U.S., official sources said Monday.

The informants added Ottawa was anything but optimistic about reaching the necessary accord in that time.

The big stumbling block is Premier Bennett's insistence that B.C. be allowed to sell its share of the power benefits developed in the U.S. instead of having them transmitted to Canada as is provided in the Columbia Development treaty signed last January by the U.S. and Canada.

"If this is merely a bargaining point, we may be able to do something," the sources said. "But if Bennett really insists on this point, then the Columbia's a dead duck."

The principal fear is that, unless the federal and B.C. governments reach some agreement in the near future, the U.S. will drop its interest in joint development and proceed instead with unilateral action to provide the needed power and flood control benefits.

It would cost the U.S. more to go it alone, but the added expenditures might be offset, in part, by the political advantages to be gained from construction in the Pacific North-west.

The informants said Washington has not issued any ultimatum or deadline on the subject. But there have been several indications that early 1962 is as long as the U.S. is willing to wait.

Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall, in Ottawa some months ago for talks with Canadian ministers, said his government was eager to get going with the actual construction work.

Yukon Moves Ahead

WHITEHORSE (CP)—Voters in the far-flung Yukon wound up a lively election campaign at the polls Monday—and also took a stride towards more self-government for the territory.

Territorial council was increased from five to seven members in the election. At council's next session, a three-man financial advisory committee will sit with the commissioner in planning the budget.

This is considered the first step in development of a cabinet form of executive authority. Until now, the commissioner appointed by the department of northern affairs has had sole executive authority.

'Dead Man Fuse' May Sway Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—A gadget so that they would detonate on impact with the ground even though the aircraft carrying them were shot down in flames or disintegrated in the air.

United States Air Force General Laurence S. Kuter, commander-in-chief of North American Air Defence Command, discussed in a speech at Toronto, September 1, the need for nuclear warheads to counteract the "dead man fuse."

It is understood that General Kuter's speech received advance approval from the Canadian defence department before its delivery. The whole question of North American air defence is expected to highlight the defence debate which gets under way in the Commons this week.

General Kuter said it is only reasonable to expect that nuclear bombs carried by Soviet planes would be designed with "dead man fuses" so that they would detonate on impact with the ground even though the aircraft carrying them were shot down in flames or disintegrated in the air.

"There is, therefore, enormous military advantage in the use of a nuclear air defence weapon which will kill the weapon and not just the carrier," he said.

He said a conventional weapon will destroy the bomber but will not assure destruction of the bomb. Only a nuclear weapon could destroy both.

What General Kuter was saying, in effect, was that defensive nuclear weapons could mean the saving of the lives of millions of North Americans.

It will be difficult for the Canadian government to ignore this argument.

As of now, the new RCAF CF-101B jet interceptor is to be armed with the conventional version of the United States Falcon air-to-air missile.

Traffic Deaths Down

Sharp decline in the number of traffic fatalities in B.C. during August was happily reported by motor vehicle officials yesterday.

Death toll for the month was 26, a sharp drop from the 46 recorded during the same month a year ago.

The number of people killed on provincial highways since the start of the year is still 34 more than last year but officials said it is becoming evident drivers are more safety conscious.

City Danger

Blight Strikes Suburbs

By TED SHACKLEFORD

The blight found in the downtown heart of Victoria by the Capital Region Planning Board recently is also hitting residential areas of the city.

A survey of the city's 12,391 houses by the board recently shows 68 per cent are classed as "fair" to "very poor."

A report of the survey released to city parks committee yesterday is the fourth and final interim report in the board's urban renewal study of Victoria.

FOR COUNCIL

CRPB director Anthony Roberts is preparing a brief resume of the four interim reports for submission to city council Oct. 12.

On the basis of age and quality, the board found only three per cent of city houses could be classed as "excellent." A further 32 per cent were classed as "good."

LITTLE LOSS

"In the city as a whole, about a third of the buildings are in good condition and a quarter are poor or very poor," the report said. "The remainder — a little less than half — are fair."

Generally speaking, there is very little hope of extending the life of the 672 buildings in very poor condition. These buildings have a blighting effect on areas in which they are located.

PARTIAL REASON

"The concentration of poor and very poor buildings in the periphery of the downtown area is partly due to speculation."

"Perhaps the maintenance of buildings in these areas is neglected because the owners are hoping to sell for commercial and light industrial purposes."

AREAS LISTED

Maps of the area included in the thick report show heavy concentrations of buildings in "poor" and "very poor" condition in Victoria West, James Bay, near Vancouver and Richardson Streets, north of Bay Street at Douglas and east and west of Cook Street north of Fort.

The report says maintenance of property, apart from buildings, is high with gardens and landscaping.

TENDS TO HIDE

But it warns this tends to hide deficiencies in buildings. "This partly explains why the general public is little concerned about the threat of blight in Victoria."

Other factors include street maintenance and the influence of non-residential developments such as hamburger stands.

NEXT STEP

"This is the end of the diagnosis. Next step will be the report on what treatment to take," said Mr. Roberts.

He added one item of information which pleased the committee — Victoria houses, on the average, are better than houses in Toronto and other eastern cities.

British Socialist Speaks Tonight

Gilbert McLatchie, executive member of the Socialist Party of Great Britain, will speak in Deane Hall, 512 Fort, at 8 p.m. tonight on "What is Socialism?"

Reading official proclamation signalled opening of 1961 United Appeal for 22 charities yesterday is Mayor Percy Scurrell who represented civic leaders of the Greater Victoria area. Closing date for $320,000 appeal is Oct. 31. (Ryan Bros. photo.)

'61 United Appeal Opened by Mayor

Teen-Ager Still Unconscious

Douglas Kemp, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Kemp, 2086 Granite, was still unconscious in Royal Jubilee Hospital last night with injuries suffered in a fall Sunday at noon.

Oak Bay police said the boy apparently stepped out from the second storey of an apartment block under construction at Transit and New. The boy was used to lift roofing material from the ground.

The hoist tipped, throwing the boy 20 to 25 feet onto a pile of lumber.

Chamber Leader Praises Scheme

The president of Victoria Chamber of Commerce has given his blessing to plans of a local firm to include a labor representative on its board of directors.

Newly elected Chamber president A. E. Walters said yesterday the plan — recently put forward by Growers Wine Co. management — had "considerable merit."

CLOSER IDENTITY

Mr. Walters felt "the move would give workers a closer identity with their company and would provide them with valuable insight into management problems."

The scheme was first suggested at a local Chamber of Commerce meeting.

GIVE IT A TRY

Impressed with the possibilities, Growers Wine general manager E. C. Warner decided to give it a try.

Labor leaders, however, are not so enthusiastic. They fear a union man, asked to sit on a board of directors, might lose his identity with the labor movement.

Musical Group Elects Officers

Timothy Vernon was recently installed as president of the Intermediate Musical Arts Society. Other officers include Philip Adamson, vice-president; Judie Anderson, secretary; Gail Mail, treasurer; and Karen McIvor, group representative.

Next meeting will be held Oct. 30 in Newstead Hall.

Behind a silk flag held across the steps of city hall yesterday morning, Mayor Percy Scurrell officially opened the 1961 United Appeal.

The mayor read a special proclamation signed by himself, Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich, Reeve George Murdoch of Oak Bay, Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt, Reeve R. Gordon Lee of Central Saanich and Dr. C. H. Hemmings, chairman of Sidney village council.

Goal of the 51-day appeal, designed to replace the Community Chest, is $320,000 — down $30,000 from last year's target. The Community Chest last year raised about $290,000.

"... Therefore, we resolved that we... hope that all our citizens will realize the urgency of this appeal and, in turn, remember their responsibility to the less fortunate of this area and give generously when the canvassers wait upon them," Mayor Scurrell said.

Residential and street canvassing will not begin until Oct. 16, advance donations will be received at the United Appeal headquarters, 1951 Cook.

Beginning today four divisions of the appeal will be under way — special corporations, special names, professional and industrial commercial.

A panel of four will take part in a question and answer session on the Greater Victoria Community Chest during a meeting of the Victoria Kiwanis Club at 12:10 p.m. today in the Empress Hotel.

Panelists will be Hugh Stephen, Mrs. Phyllis Graveley, David Woodsworth and Dick Baley.

Militia Units Train Again

About 500 men and officers of the six units of 25 Militia Group in Greater Victoria will start their fall training this week.

All units will parade at the Bay Street Armory at their regular time. Emphasis this year will be placed on national survival as well as standard basic training.

Annual Chest 'Hokum'

Red Cross, 'Army' Defy Threat to Join or Starve

Replying to threats that they join the United Appeal or starve, officials of the Salvation Army and Red Cross here said yesterday they don't intend to do either.

"Just the same old annual hokum," snapped Salvation Army Brig. C. J. Milley in answer to a statement by Community Chest director Hugh Stephen.

Mr. Stephen said he had "heard talk" that 10 or 20 large firms—whose contributions would make or break a campaign—were thinking of cutting off grants to agencies outside the Chest.

ONLY SOLUTION

"Frankly," said the Chest director, "I think it is the only solution for business firms to refuse to give anything to those agencies not in the Chest."

Salvation Army spokesmen reiterated their determination to avoid Community Chest affiliation at all costs.

ABSOLUTELY FATAL

"Our organization is international in scope and we have many commitments outside Canada. An affiliation of this sort would be absolutely fatal," said one.

The Salvation Army feels affiliation is not desirable because theirs is primarily a religious organization.

AT SAME TIME

"We feel a man's social and spiritual needs should be ministered to at the same time," the spokesman said. "Unlike the Chest, we aren't in the business of doling out relief alone."

He said the Salvation Army's experience with Chest affiliation in other cities had been all the way from unfortunate to totally unsatisfactory.

ONLY ONE CITY

Vancouver is the sole city in the nation where the Salvation Army is affiliated with a United Appeal.

As for the implication that big business intends to withdraw support if they remain outside here, the Salvation Army's reply is blunt and to the point — they just don't believe it.

DIFFERENT REASONS

Nor will the local Red Cross allow itself to get involved with the Chest — although for different reasons.

Red Cross president Ernest Heybrook points out his agency — which invariably meets campaign quotas — has made firm commitments to hospital blood banks on this basis.

SOME MARGIN

He, and other Red Cross officers, are quick to point out what would happen if their organization joined and the Chest then failed by some margin to meet its quota.

If they took in only 70 per cent of their goal, the agencies would have only that percentage of their requested fund to work with.

Welfare Saving Too Small Goodwill Tax Plea Fails

Goodwill Enterprises has failed in an attempt to have Victoria exempt it from the payment of taxes on premises to be built soon.

City finance committee yesterday decided to reject the application when members learned the Goodwill project would save Victoria little money in welfare costs.

$5,800 A YEAR

The firm had pointed out the new plant will enable it to employ a number of handicapped persons who are at present receiving city welfare payments totalling $5,800 a year.

City comptroller James Bramley told the committee the city would not save the money.

SMALL SAVING

He said any saving on city welfare costs would be shared with the rest of B.C. and the saving to the city would be small.

Bogus Bills Circulating

Victoria merchants have been warned by police to look out for counterfeit U.S. $50 and $100 bills, after a number of these were cashed in Nanaimo Sunday evening.

Nanaimo RCMP said several hundred dollars in counterfeit bills had been cashed by a couple — posing as man and wife — at various motels there.

Tax Return Ahead As Deadline Nears

Payment of taxes at city hall is slightly ahead of last year.

City comptroller James Bramley reported yesterday that 44.57 per cent of current taxes and arrears have been paid so far this year, compared with 44.42 per cent last year.

Deadline for the payment of taxes without penalty is Sept. 29. From Oct. 1 a 1 per cent penalty is added, rising to a total of 6 per cent by the end of the year.

Bennett Emphasizes:

Socreds Committed To Free Enterprise

B.C.'s Social Credit government remains firmly committed to the principle of free enterprise development and has no intention of converting resource industries to public ownership, Premier Bennett said yesterday.

He said the government's action in taking over the B.C. Electric Company early last month was in keeping with a trend established by free enterprise governments throughout Canada which have placed power generation and distribution in the hands of Crown agencies.

Premier Bennett made his statement in a prepared release reviewing the takeover of the utility company and the payment of compensation to shareholders.

"The complete confidence of investors the world over both in the soundness of B.C.'s government finances and in the province's future under free enterprise was demonstrated (when) a $100,000,000 issue of partly development bonds offered on behalf of the company was oversubscribed within two days," he said.

Television Went Blank Leaving Black Blinking

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

FADE OUT: A big civil defence exercise will soon be held in Vernon and Provincial Secretary Wesley Black called a press conference yesterday to explain the details.

A number of newsmen were on hand, including a film crew from the local television outlet.

Mr. Black started his pitch before the cameras and everything was going swimmingly until the camera whirled to a halt.

"I've run out of film," said the television man. "But that doesn't matter. We've got enough."

"Don't you want me to go on?" pleaded Mr. Black. "I was just leading up to my main point."

"No," replied the cameraman. "That's good enough."

Mr. Black watched in disbelief as the TV men left his office.

NAMES MAKE NEWS: A major policy speech on power will be delivered by Premier Bennett at Prince George Saturday evening. The word is that it will be quite newsworthy.

Old Fisherman Lee Hallberg has returned to a full time job with CKDA after a number of years in the real estate business.

Radio station at Sacramento the other night broadcast a number of fabulous flop records. "One, written before man's invasion of space, went along the lines of 'A peaceful dove, coo his love, under the sleepy Cape Canaveral moon.'"

Commercial Transport Minister Earle Westwood says he doesn't expect to be saying anything about the future of the Pacific Northern Railway for quite some time.

NEW LOOK: Work crews will start on the landscaping of the new law courts building grounds in the next day or so.

A number of trees will come down opposite Christ Church Cathedral—but tree lovers may rest easy.

Deputy works minister Arnold Webb said yesterday as many trees as possible will be saved but some are just not worth it. Quite a number of red maples, some already 12 feet high, will be planted in the next few weeks.

Complete landscaping will not be possible until after the building is completed early next year. Then the RCMP will move into the building and the present old house which serves as their detachment headquarters will be ripped down.

INSTANT ITEM: It is more important to encourage every child to do his best than to train one child to be the best.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald H. MacDonald of Humboldt, Sask., announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Jeannette Marguerite, to Cst. Kenneth Dean Mitchell, RCMP, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Mitchell of Radium Hot Springs, B.C. Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: This is not a request for help but a plea to parents of small children to leave the little ones at home when they go shopping in the evening.

I'm sick of seeing toddlers pulled by the arms, scolded, slapped and spanked in department stores and super-markets. It hurts me when I see a five-year-old rubbing his eyes and whining—only because he is exhausted. And then the worn-out mother just about pulls his little arm out of the socket because he isn't "behaving properly."

I recently saw a mother who showed more compassion for her dog than for her four-year-old son. When the dog cried, she picked him up and petted him. When the boy pulled on her sleeve and whimpered, she gave him a crack on his head.

Please, Ann, tell these mothers that small children belong home in bed at night. I've told a few face to face—but you could tell millions.—OBSERVER

Dear Observer: I can add nothing to your sensible plea but my wholehearted endorsement.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has been drinking from six to eight highballs every night for the past 15 years. I've been working ever since we married. Last month I kept track of the money spent on liquor in this house (I don't drink and we seldom have company) and it amounts to my salary. I reasoned, then, that I could quit work if my husband would stop drinking.

The problem is, I want our two children to have a decent place to live, good clothes and a few extras. If I quit my job, something has to give, and I know what it will be.

The doctor told me three years ago I should not be working downtown and running a house, too. I'm tired and half sick most of the time. I want to quit work and stay home but my husband claims drinking is no problem and he refuses to give it up. What can I do?—M. V. A.

Dear M. V. A.: Anyone who has been drinking from six to eight highballs every night for 15 years is an alcoholic whether he knows it or not. An alcoholic is sick but unless he is willing to admit it you can be sure he will make no effort to straighten himself around.

Here are your alternatives: (1) Tell your husband to either go to A.A. or get out, in which case you risk depriving your children of a father. (2) Quit work and become accustomed to a lower standard of living. (3) Continue to work so you can provide your children with the extras and so your husband can continue to fog himself up every night and anesthetize himself against reality.

Dear Ann Landers: I'll be brief and to the point. My fiancé's aunt has lots of money. She has always pampered him with trips and gifts because she had no children of her own and Ted is her favorite nephew.

This aunt doesn't like me because I'm not a college girl and I don't have anything to brag about on the society page of the newspaper when our engagement is announced.

We've gone together three years and planned to marry in October. Now Ted tells me he needs time to think it over. He feels he owes his aunt "a lot" and that if he marries me he will break her heart and cut himself off from a nice inheritance. How do I fight this?

Honeymoon Trip To California

A motor trip to San Francisco followed the recent marriage of Miss Ann Patricia Bartlett and Mr. Ronald Greene. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bartlett, 2257 Epworth Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris L.

Greene, 3250 Ripon Road, were married in Congregation Temple Emmanuel by Rabbi Raphael Levine, of Temple De Hirsch, Seattle.

For the double-ring ceremony, the bride wore a white nylon gown with floral applique on the bodice and full skirt. A bustle highlighted the back of the dress and sleeves were short.

A green brocade gown and beige veil was worn by the bride's only attendant, Miss Clare Greene, San Francisco, sister of the groom. Johanna Hill roses were in her bouquet.

David Bartlett was best man. For the reception, also held in the temple, a buffet supper was served. A three-tier cake centred the bridal table. It was flanked by Georgian candleabra.

Leaving on honeymoon, the new Mrs. Greene donned a gold three-piece suit. Newlyweds will make their home at 2180 Haultain Street.

ROYAL BRIDE

At the recent meeting of the Royal Bride Chapter, IOBE, plans were made for a pie sale to be held on Sept. 29. It was also decided to hold a dance at the Royal Colwood Golf Club, Oct. 29, and to sponsor a Victoria Theatre Guild play, "The Chalk Circle," at Langham Court Theatre.

PEACH CREME BRULEE

(Makes 6 Servings)

Five large fresh peaches or 2 cups peach slices, 1 1/2 to 2 ounce package vanilla pudding and pie filling mix (not instant), 1 1/2 cups milk, 1/2 pint (1 1/4 cups) dairy sour cream, 1/4 teaspoon almond extract, 1/4 cup lightly-packed brown sugar.

Blanch, peel and slice peaches, removing stones. Place in a large pie plate or broad shallow baking dish. Prepare pudding mix according to package directions, using only 1 1/2 cups milk. Cool. Beat in dairy sour cream and almond extract. Strain, if necessary. Pour over peaches in casserole and chill several hours. Sprinkle brown sugar over top of pudding. Place under broiler (about 6 inches from source of heat) and broil until sugar is bubbly and browned—about 5 minutes.

Kupfer and Mr. R. W. Kupfer, Portland, Ore., chairman of the conference. Today wives of delegates will be entertained at luncheon at the home of Mr. John Austen, secretary-treasurer, Victoria office, and Mrs. Austen, 4394 Chartwell Drive, and later will be taken on a tour of Butchart's Gardens. The conference will end on Wednesday.

Women Invade Bank

One of the few remaining strongholds of the "male" has been invaded as a result of the Bank of Nova Scotia to appoint two of its women employees as branch managers.

They are to be installed in branches in Toronto and Ottawa, and they will set up a record as being the first of their sex to hold such office in Canada.

Mrs. Shirley D. Gilles takes over at Yonge and Rose-lawn, Toronto, and Miss Gladys A. Marcellus at Bronson and Holmwood, Ottawa.

Men are taking a back seat in banking for the Scotia bank says that 66 per cent of its employees now are women. In 1960, it had only one female staffer—the secretary to the general manager.

"HE LOOKS YOUNG... SHE'S LOOKING OLDER!"

Unfair—yet how often you've heard such comments about husband and wife! When you begin to show in a woman's face, it's generally due to skin dryness—a condition caused by lack of natural oils and moisture. The skin coarsens, little lines and crow's feet appear. But you can treat this problem—with Pond's skin care cream. This famous cream contains Allantoin—a remarkable substance that starts repair work in just 10 minutes! Allantoin floats off lifeless surface cells, opens the way for Pond's rich moisturized lanolin to penetrate deep-down. Almost overnight, your complexion becomes softer, smoother, younger-looking! Prevent skin dryout. Get Pond's skin cream. In jar or tube, wherever cosmetics are sold.

INCO DEVELOPS WORLD MARKETS FOR NICKEL

Nickel plated products build world markets for nickel

The efficient, modern appliances so common in Canada today, the brightwork on automobiles, bicycles, musical instruments and other familiar products manufactured in many parts of the world are plated with nickel and chromium... it's the good heavy coating of nickel that provides resistance to corrosion for lasting beauty in depth.

Canada is the world's largest producer of nickel. And Inco, through sales, research and market development operations, maintains a continuing program for the expansion of international markets for Inco nickel.

More Inco nickel than ever before will be exported to Inco's expanding world markets... helping to build trade balances, stimulate Canada's future economic growth and create more jobs for Canadians.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

Germany and Italy are known throughout the world for their fine musical instruments. Nickel-chrome plating keeps many of these instruments looking bright and beautiful for years and protects working parts.

Murder Trial First of Kind

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first non-capital murder trial in B.C. since the Canadian Criminal Code was amended began Monday.

On trial before Mr. Justice J. G. A. Hutcheson and an assize court jury is 21-year-old Dieter Wilhelm Remm. He is accused of murder in the March 21 death of hairdresser Barry James Glazebrook, also known as Donaldson.

Under the criminal code amendments, murder convictions still carry the death penalty.

Mr. Justice Hutcheson said this was the first non-capital murder trial and it will not be necessary for the jury to be kept from public contact during the trial which is expected to last a week.

In cases where an accused is on trial for his life, juries are allowed no contact with the public once the hearing begins.

Witnesses told of hearing cries, a scream, the sounds of someone leaving the victim's apartment and the frantic barking of a dog.

Along with eight 50-pound cases of explosive, 300 No. 6 fuses, 100 to a box, and 600 hot wire lighters, 100 to a box, were taken.

Theft of explosives in the past in the Kootenay has often been attributed to the work of terrorists.

Thirteen-year-old Margaret Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Brown, 2260 Bowker Avenue, has recently covered herself with dancing glory.

Competing at the San Francisco Caledonian Games she accumulated five major trophies including that for the Dancer of the Day, given to the amateur over 16 who scores the highest aggregate.

She also won the George Bruce trophy for the highest aggregate among all amateurs as well as the City of Petaluma trophy for the best amateur over 16. Two further trophies came her way for her performances in the "Reel of Tulloch" and "Shean Triubhas."

Miss Brown trains at the Adeline and Heather Duncan studios.

Whoopers Will Miss Hurricane

OTTAWA (UPI) — The nearly extinct whooping crane will not have reached its wintering grounds at Aransas Pass, Tex., before the area is hit by Hurricane Carla, a Canadian Wildlife Service spokesman said Monday.

Dr. David Munro said the vanguard of the birds was on the western Canadian prairies while most still were at their nesting grounds in Wood Buffalo Park in the Canadian north. He said they would not arrive in Texas before the end of November.

Kitimat Going Again

KITIMAT (CP) — Water surged through the Aluminum Co. of Canada's 10-mile hydro tunnel Monday, turning the turbines that power the smelter in this isolated community.

The city and the Alcan plant will be switched from emergency power to hydro power after a three-month shutdown that left the plant idle while round-the-clock repairs were being made to the tunnel at Kemano, 10 miles away.

BACK TO WORK
More than 1,400 men laid off for the repairs have been called back to work. Production will begin, slowly at first, within a few days.

The branch in the tunnel kept 300 hard-rock miners, tunnelers, teamsters and other tradesmen busy.

A team of experts made the final inspection of the waterway and ceiling bulkhead at the Horetzky tunnel entrance, 2,800 feet up Mount DuBois.

NO ACCIDENTS
The tunnel repair contractors — Northern Construction Co. and J. W. Stewart Ltd. of Vancouver — completed the mammoth task with an accident-free record.

Company officials said: "We're satisfied the repairs are satisfactory — the tunnel has been checked from end to end to the other and we're more than pleased with the job."

Stock Fraud Case Opens

REGINA (CP) — Preliminary hearing of Walter Luboff of Saskatoon on a charge of defrauding the public opened Monday before Magistrate L. F. Bence. About 36 witnesses were under subpoena.

Luboff is charged with making or causing others to make false representations concerning the shares of Columbia Metals Explorations, co. between 1955 and 1957. The stock was underwritten by Western Bond and Share Corp. of Saskatoon, a firm owned and managed by Luboff.

Victor Boechler of Saskatoon, a salesman for Western Bond and Share, said Luboff told a meeting of salesmen the Ford Motor Co. had put $4,500,000 to Columbia's credit in a Saskatoon bank; there was a potash mine at Esterhazy, Sask., with $700,000,000 worth of potash blocked out and the stock would be listed on the Toronto stock exchange and go to $4 or $5 a share.

He also said if purchasers of shares needed their money back, he would return it, the witness said.

Asked whether he believed the representations at that time, Boechler replied, "I certainly did." He said he had sold from 90,000 to 100,000 shares at prices from 50 cents to $2. Some were sold to his relatives.

Police Fear Terrorists Got Dynamite

NELSON, B.C. (CP) — Four hundred pounds of dynamite were stolen over the weekend from a department of public works powder shed in the New Denver area in Slokan Valley, RCMP reported Monday.

Along with eight 50-pound cases of explosive, 300 No. 6 fuses, 100 to a box, and 600 hot wire lighters, 100 to a box, were taken.

Theft of explosives in the past in the Kootenay has often been attributed to the work of terrorists.

Does your bank really help you save money?

Of course it does. Every bank in Canada offers you a Savings Account service. No matter what bank you visit, the Savings Account system is operated the same way.

So why should you choose Toronto-Dominion over any other bank?

The answer is quite simple. It's the happy combination of the service and the people who provide it for you, that makes all the difference.

Our tellers are the FRIENDLIEST you'll find

Our tellers are the FRIENDLIEST you'll find

This is Diana Sleeth, a Savings Account Teller at our Burrard & Robson branch in Vancouver. Diana is shown here accepting a regular deposit from one of her customers. Diana likes to watch her customers' Savings grow, because, she knows how important it is to have the money on hand for the things you want and need.

You'll find efficient, friendly people like Diana Sleeth in every Toronto-Dominion branch across the country. Their "interested" kind of service makes it much easier for you to save at "The Bank". Make it a point to meet some of our people soon and see for yourself how much...

Valuable Paintings Stolen

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — A man concealing a gun in a bouquet locked a maid in a closet Sunday and robbed a millionaire's home of four paintings, the victims valued at $670,000.

FRAMES MUTILATED

No one but the maid, Jeanne Prosser, 24, was home. Mrs. Bright returned from New York to find the debris of mutilated frames.

She identified the stolen paintings and their values: Picasso's portrait of Sebastian, $400,000.

Picasso's Looking through the Window, a portrait of the artist's son, $100,000.

Modigliani's the Coccolier, $150,000.

An Afro abstract, worth $20,000.

The maid said the robber came to the door carrying a dozen gladioli. He held a revolver in the bouquet.

The family's big dog was chained in the back yard.

"He would have torn the thief to pieces," Mrs. Bright said.

"Come on in, Mrs. Snyder—the water's fine!"

Peace March

Boos, Tomatoes Greet Anti-German Parade

PEMBROKE, Wales (Reuters) — Boos, jeers, eggs and tomatoes greeted 2,000 Britons demonstrating Saturday against West German troops training in Wales.

A "peace march" was organized by the Campaign Against German Troops in Wales as a protest against West German's 84th Panzer Battalion spending three weeks at the British Army training centre in nearby Castlemartin.

The march had barely progressed 100 yards from its starting point when a counter-demonstration, organized by teenagers and a few uniformed British soldiers, began.

Two soldiers yelled at the "anti-panzer" paraders: "It won't be long before we will be in Germany and we don't want this treatment."

Historic Buildings Will Be Visited

Visits to historic buildings will highlight Victoria University's night school course on Victoria and British Columbia history, starting in the library and archives in the Legislative Buildings Sept. 26.

Special attention will be paid to Victoria pioneers, and great events in local history, in view of the city's 100th birthday next year.

James K. Nesbitt will be class lecturer. Assistant archivist Miss Inez Mitchell will show treasures of the archives.

Five of the lectures will be given in the library and archives. Visits will be paid to Craigflower Farm, Craigdarroch Castle, Government House, the Maritime Museum, Hatley Park, Work Point Barracks, Helmcken House and St. Ann's Academy.

This has been one of the college's most popular courses in recent years, and is attracting wide attention this fall because of the city's centenary in 1962.

Experts Study Mammoth Tooth

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI) — University of California paleontologists studied a rectangular-shaped tooth from a woolly mammoth unearthed by a construction crew.

The tooth—10 inches wide, 13 inches long, and 4 inches thick—was found by the crew while working on a drainage project.

Under W-War But No One Stops

LONDON (AP) — The master of ceremonies at a bingo night held up his hands and asked for silence.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said in a tone resembling the voice of doom, "I have to tell you that Russia and America have declared war on one another."

His face pale, he stepped down and waited for the reaction from 212 players.

"Hurrah," shouted one man. About a dozen women abandoned their bingo cards and headed for the exit.

But the other 200 just looked annoyed.

Seeing this, the master of ceremonies, George Watters, said: "Oh well, eyes down and let's go on playing."

Talking about the incident in an interview, he said: "I was stunned by what I thought was a new world war."

Forest Fire Season Now a Hazy Memory

The 1961 forest fire season is rapidly becoming nothing but a hazy memory.

The forest service reported only 182 fires burning through the province, compared with a total of 351 last week.

Kamloops is the only district where the fire hazard remains fairly high. Largest number of new fires were reported in the Kamloops district.

Officials are in the process of assessing the actual damage to B.C.'s main industry. Fire fighting costs to date are set at $3,743,914, compared with the 1960 Sept. 8 total expenditure of $4,570,548.

There have been 4,385 fires throughout the province during the season. Last year the total was 3,721.

Police Charge Union Chiefs In Bitter Fight

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—Three national officers and two supporters of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) were charged Monday with unlawful assembly following disruption of a Sunday night meeting of the union's rebellious Sudbury local.

A police spokesman said similar charges will probably be laid against "at least six or seven more that we know of."

Charged are national president Ken Smith, district two chief Mike Solaki, legislative director Nels Thibault and Will Girard and James Loftus, both supporters of the national executive.

OUT ON BAIL

All five were freed on $400 bail put up by national secretary William Kennedy.

The charges stemmed from a meeting held in Memorial Park, at the rear of the Sudbury Arena, an hour before the meeting of Local 598 in the arena.

SENT LETTER

Tony Soden, a member of the district two board, has sent a letter of resignation to Solaki, claiming that "it is quite apparent the executive is not developing policy for the benefit of the locals, but is following the dictates and program of Smith."

The letter also protested "the dictatorial policies of the national union."

Smith said he understood more than 6,000 members of Local 598 have signed a petition requesting that the affairs of the local be taken out of the hands of the local executive.

The local's Sunday meeting was broken up on police orders after uproar and fighting drowned out the speaker, Canadian Labor Congress president Claude Jodoin.

Reds Reject Welsh Bid

LONDON (UPI)—A Moscow bank has turned down a loan request made by a town council in Wales.

The Merthyr Tydfil council had asked Moscow's Narodny Bank for the loan seeking lower interest rates abroad.

Evidence Introduced In Road Death Trial

Preliminary hearing of a charge of criminally negligent driving against Charles William Logan, 452 Craigflower, begun last month in Esquimalt police court, continued yesterday and was remanded to next Monday.

Logan was charged following the death early last Aug. 19 of Mechanical Engineer James Roy, 26, of Grimsby, England, a seaman aboard the British warship HMS London-derry then visiting Esquimalt. Yesterday's session saw introduction by the crown of material evidence from the scene of the fatal car crash—the 800 block Admirals Road.

In the same court Allison Henry Pimlott, no fixed address, was sentenced to one month in jail after pleading guilty to theft of motorcycle parts.

Brian Wesley Fulton, Work Point, was fined $100 and placed under bond of $100 to be of good behavior for six months on a charge of prowling by night.

In city court Zivka Komodina, 582 Hillside, was fined $75 and placed under bond of $100 for six months after admitting obstructing a police officer Friday about 5 p.m.

Det. Ray Maitland told the court Komodina was being questioned with a companion on Douglas near Herald and made trouble when his companion was arrested.

Two youths from Port Alberni were fined $50 each in a session of Oak Bay court after admitting prowling by night near the home of Dr. Reuben Matko, 3140 Humber.

The two were challenged by Dr. Matko, fled and were caught by police shortly after ward.

Magistrate William Ostler told them the circumstances of the case were "extremely suspicious," but, since both were gainfully employed and this was a first offence, he was letting them off with a fine.

Plane Search Called Off

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—The search for a light plane missing 10 days on a flight from Williams Lake to Vancouver has been all but abandoned.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police said here one aircraft still is circling an area north of Merritt. At one stage some 20 planes searched an area of 38,000 square miles.

Taxes Up or Down?

City Waits for Power Clarity

A "wait and see" policy has been adopted by City Hall officials following reports that the B.C. Hydro Commission will take over power distribution on Vancouver Island next year.

"It's all speculation," an official said. "Who can tell what will happen? We'll just have to wait and see."

$100,000 GAIN

He was referring to a suggestion that the changeover could mean Greater Victoria taxpayers and consumers would gain some $100,000 in lower power charges and grants to municipalities.

Tied in with the change is a strong suggestion that the B.C. Hydro Commission would move out of its building on Blanshard Street and occupy the B.C. Electric building.

In addition, the city has been hoping the B.C. Electric crown corporation will continue to pay $150,000 in taxes for its buildings in Victoria.

WILL BE SERVING

If B.C. Hydro moves into the B.C. Electric building it will likely pay no taxes because it will be serving Victoria with power and it is likely the provincial government will move into the present B.C. Hydro building—tax free.

This could mean a tax loss of almost $200,000 to Victoria but some of this money could be made up from a standard three per cent tax on power poles, lines, substations and other facilities.

TB Germs Beat Wonder Drugs

TORONTO (CP)—Evidence that the germ causing tuberculosis is surviving the onslaught of "wonder" drugs was presented Monday in the first scientific session of the 165th conference of the International Union Against Tuberculosis.

Dr. Gertrud Meisner of Germany said the percentage of new patients with drug-resistant germs is steadily increasing. The conference was told the germs have already last five years in many countries encountered significant in-

Bank Theft Attempt Denied

Victoria police and bank officials yesterday denied any attempt had been made Sunday morning to rob the Bank of Commerce, 717 Fort.

Police were called by a nearby hotel night clerk at 2:40 a.m. He told them he'd seen two youths walking along Douglas. One threw an object through the bank window, then both ran away toward Douglas Street.

The bank window was broken and plants below it damaged by the glass. Inside on the floor police found a 12-inch pinch bar. Nothing else was damaged, nor was anything missing.

'Crepe-Hangers' Lashed Still Hope, Says Green

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green, declaring there still is a "reasonable chance" for disarmament, hit out Monday at the "jeremiahs and crepe-hangers" in Ottawa who try to belittle Canada's efforts to halt the arms race.

Mr. Green said in the Commons there seems to be a feeling in Ottawa "that I'm down in the dumps over disarmament and have given it up as hopeless."

"This was a false notion. I think the demand for disarmament will be greater than ever before."

Canada will go to the forthcoming United Nations meeting to do what it can to rally world opinion behind disarmament and an end to nuclear testing, Mr. Green said.

TOO SERIOUS

"This issue may involve the whole future of civilization and it is much too serious a proposition to have doubting Thomases all over the place."

Opposition Leader Pearson said no one wanted to underestimate Mr. Green's optimism. But it was difficult to be an optimist and still take a realistic view of the situation.

Mr. Pearson recalled that Mr. Green himself said last week the world is hovering on the brink of nuclear war.

Tshombe Resists Union of Congo

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuter)—President Moise Tshombe of Katanga province claimed Monday night that the United Nations plans to end the independence of his breakaway province before the opening of its General Assembly session Sept. 19.

Tshombe told his second press conference Monday that Katanga is the object of political manoeuvring and even threats "by the UN."

Canada Plans Help For Caribbean Area

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is trying to organize a program of aid for the Caribbean region on the same scale as the Colombo plan, External Affairs Minister Green told the Commons Monday night.

The Colombo plan is a joint aid program for Southeast Asia.

Mr. Green said Canada does not know yet whether the Colombo idea will work in the Caribbean but is going to try to get the project started.

He gave no other details.

Kennedy Proposal Still Irks Green

OTTAWA (UPI)—External Affairs Minister Howard Green last night indicated that a decision on Canada's membership in the Organization of American States (OAS) would be made "in due course."

Green also indicated the Canadian government's displeasure with President Kennedy's suggestion during his visit to Canada that this country should join the OAS.

He told the House of Commons during discussion of External Affairs Department estimates that before any decision was made the Canadian people should "realize just what the implications of such a move would be."

He told the House that "one of the least effective ways of persuading Canada to adopt a policy is for the president or head of state of another country to come here and tell us what we should do, even though it is done with the best intentions."

Even when it is done in that way, it is not the best way to get results," Green said, "and I am rather surprised that the honorable member would suggest that we should at once have jumped through the hoop."

Green made the comments after former Liberal cabinet minister Paul Martin called on the government to join the OAS.

HURRICANE CARLA ROARS INTO TEXAS

Damage Mounts Into Millions

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—Hurricane Carla roared inland Monday night from along the Texas coast where it left millions of dollars in property damage.

Its force had diminished but it whipped up winds as high as 70 miles an hour in the Austin area of central Texas.

The hurricane dropped her winds from as much as 173 miles an hour to 110 as she moved slowly northward from Port Lavaca, about 75 miles northeast of Corpus Christi.

The big brawler splintered and smashed property from Cameron, La., to Corpus Christi, 500 miles apart on the Louisiana-Texas gulf coast.

Monday night, tornado-like winds bounced out of its fringe along Houston's ship channel. From 15 to 20 persons were reported injured. Six business establishments were destroyed and 34 homes damaged.

At the time Houston was caught in Carla's outskirts at the time. Wind gusts of 60 to 65 miles an hour shook her.

Far inland, 150 miles to the northwest, near the Texas capital of Austin, the little town of Elgin was being lashed at the same time by a 20-mile-an-hour gale. Another small town, Se-Guin, near San Antonio, was jarred by winds of 30 miles an hour. At Lagrange, another inland town, winds ranged up to 58 miles an hour.

Even as the storm's vanguard moved overland, a giant tidal wave was swung again at Palacios on the coast. A tide of 13 feet eight inches poured water over the first floor of the hospital.

The weather bureau reported the hurricane's winds down to 110 miles an hour but warned Carla is still dangerous and may be slow to die.

50 MILES HOUR Winds diminished at coastal points after darkness fell. At Galveston it dropped to 50 miles an hour, at Corpus Christi to 32.

The refugees, for the most part, still depended on temporary shelter. At Austin, Red Cross officials reported 180,330 evacuees were sheltered in 68 Texas counties. Of these 3,000 were infants.

FINALLY HIT Carla, after sparring for hours offshore, finally hit Port Lavaca in the afternoon. There all but a thousand of the 10,000 residents had fled.

Up and down the coast residents had rushed to safer country. Civil defence authorities said 500,000 had fled—probably the largest exodus in U.S. history. The Red Cross estimated 300,000.

The rich coastal plains, facing a loss of $100,000,000 in cotton and rice crops alone, was all but deserted.

No deaths were traced directly to Carla but her deadly offspring—a series of tornadoes—claimed the life of a four-week-old baby in the little town of Kaplan La. There a tornado cut a 14-block path of destruction.

But the big threat from Carla apparently had passed for Louisiana.

'We Will Fight' Vows NATO Boss

OTTAWA (CP)—The secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization said Monday that if there is aggression against West Berlin "we will fight."

Dirk Stikker, the one-time Netherlands foreign minister who took over the NATO post only last spring, said that from a military standpoint Berlin could and would be defended if the crisis reached the point of war.

FOOLISH ENOUGH But the NATO leader did not feel Russian Premier Khrushchev was "foolish enough to increase the tensions to the point of war."

In a free-wheeling press conference Dr. Stikker also said: "That nuclear warheads should be spread over more NATO countries to improve the bargaining position of the alliance; use of nuclear weapons should be put under NATO-wide control; steps were being taken to improve consultation among members of the 15-nation alliance."

MEETS DIEBENBAKER Dr. Stikker met Canadian government officials Monday and will talk with Prime Minister Diefenbaker today.

He said the talks, covering a wide range of topics, would naturally touch on the possibility of Canada obtaining nuclear arms. His visit would serve to "bring the links of the alliance still closer" at a time of crisis touched off by the Berlin situation and the resumption of nuclear testing by the Soviet.

WITHIN NATO Dr. Stikker said his personal opinion is that there should be nuclear weapons within NATO "in as wide a range as possible" to increase the bargaining power of the alliance, but that the control of such weapons should be brought under the alliance as a whole.

He criticized the present system of single or two-power control.

He Had Garbage On His Conscience

DUNCAN—A Cherry Point resident, with a whole year's garbage on his conscience, has sent Duncan council a cheque for $10 to pay for his use of the city's dump.

A letter from P. D. McLennan, enclosing the cheque, was read to a thunderstruck city council last night.

Mr. McLennan's letter said he had been using the dump for more than a year though not a resident of the city.

His conscience, he said, "is extremely elastic" but still refused to allow him to impose further on the city.

SECOND NEWS SECTION

VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1961

Traffic Deaths Down

Sharp decline in the number of traffic fatalities in B.C. during August was happily reported by motor vehicle officials yesterday.

Death toll for the month was 24, a sharp drop from the 48 recorded during the same month a year ago.

The number of people killed on provincial highways since the start of the year is still 34 more than last year but officials said it is becoming evident drivers are more safety conscious.

City Danger

Blight Strikes Suburbs

By TED SHACKLEFORD

The blight found in the downtown heart of Victoria by the Capital Region Planning Board recently is also hitting residential areas of the city.

A survey of the city's 12,391 houses by the board recently shows 68 per cent are classed as "fair" to "very poor."

A report of the survey released to city parks committee yesterday is the fourth and final interim report in the board's urban renewal study of Victoria.

FOR COUNCIL

CRPB director Anthony Roberts is preparing a brief resume of the four interim reports for submission to city council Oct. 12.

On the basis of age and quality, the board found only three per cent of city houses could be classed as "excellent." A further 32 per cent were classed as "good."

LITTLE LESS

In the city as a whole, about a third of the buildings are in good condition and a quarter are poor or very poor," the report said. "The remainder — a little less than half — are fair."

Generally speaking, there is very little hope of extending the life of the 672 buildings in very poor condition. These buildings have a blighting effect on areas in which they are located.

PARTIAL REASON

"The concentration of poor and very poor buildings in the periphery of the downtown area is partly due to speculation."

"Perhaps the maintenance of buildings in these areas is neglected because the owners are hoping to sell for commercial and light industrial purposes."

AREAS LISTED

Maps of the area included in the thick report show heavy concentrations of buildings in "poor" and "very poor" condition in Victoria West, James Bay, near Vancouver and Richardson Streets, north of Bay Street at Douglas and east and west of Cook Street north of Fort.

The report says maintenance of property, apart from buildings, is high with gardens and landscaping.

TENDS TO RISE

But it warns this tends to hide deficiencies in buildings.

"This partly explains why the general public is little concerned about the threat of blight in Victoria."

Other factors include street maintenance and the influence of non-residential developments such as hamburger stands.

NEXT STEP

"This is the end of the diagnosis. Next step will be the report on what treatment to take," said Mr. Roberts.

He added one item of information which pleased the committee — Victoria houses on the average, are better than houses in Toronto and other eastern cities.

British Socialist Speaks Tonight

Parents Debate School Boycott

DUNCAN — Parents of 41 children here have threatened to keep them out of school unless a bus is provided to transport them over a 2½-mile stretch of heavily-travelled, shoulderless road.

Last Thursday, following strong representations to Cowichan school board and Education Minister Leslie Petersen, the board decided that, while it could not provide a bus on a shared road basis, it would try to pick up some of the younger children (Grades 1 to 6 are involved) on a "courtesy basis."

WHOLE DISTANCE

This did not satisfy the parents, who feel the hazards of the road demand transportation for the whole distance. But it was nevertheless felt that, until some major move is made to ensure the safety of the children, it was better than nothing, so long as something is ultimately done.

Mrs. Cliff Sellers, who acted as spokesman for the parents, was informed Sunday by trustee Pat Mason there was no room on the bus for Tranter School children. Trustee Mason has already recommended a bus be put on for this route.

A hurriedly called meeting of parents yesterday decided that, if something is not done to ease the situation quickly, parents will keep their children away from school for the sake of their safety.

On Wednesday, at their request, Robert Stincham, local MLA, will see the minister to discuss the problem. Meanwhile, a further letter is being sent to Mr. Petersen pointing out the section of the old Semones Road heavily used by large transport vehicles is not safe for children.

The alternative, Drinkwater Road, is too far and will present further hazards during the winter.

So far, the department has not replied to the previous request for help, which was supported by a parents' petition.

Mrs. Sellers said that, "if we don't hear something soon, I'm afraid the kids will not go to school."

TOFINO — James McKenzie was treated for shock Sunday after the car he was driving collided with a gravel truck four miles from here on the Tofino-Ucluelet Road.

Yachts at Houston, Texas, are jumbled and wrecked testimony that Hurricane Carla passed that way.

CARLA SLAMS TEXAS COAST

Scores Hurt 180,000 Flee

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—Hurricane Carla roared inland Monday night from along the Texas coast where it left millions of dollars in property damage.

Its force had diminished but it whipped up winds as high as 70 miles an hour in the Austin area of central Texas.

The hurricane dropped her winds from as much as 173 miles an hour to 110 as she moved slowly northward from Port Lavaca, about 75 miles northeast of Corpus Christi.

BIG BRAWLER

The big brawler splintered and smashed property from Cameron, La., to Corpus Christi, 500 miles apart on the Louisiana-Texas gulf coast.

Monday night, tornado-like winds bounced out of its fringe along Houston's ship channel. From 15 to 20 persons were reported injured. Six business establishments were destroyed and 34 homes damaged.

AT THE TIME

Houston was caught in Carla's outskirts at the time. Wind gusts of 60 to 65 miles an hour shook her.

Far inland, 150 miles to the northwest, near the Texas capital of Austin, the little town of Elgin was being lashed at the same time by a 70-mile-an-hour gale. Another small town, Se-Guin, near San Antonio, was jarred by winds of 50 miles an hour. At Lagrange, another inland town, winds ranged up to 98 miles an hour.

GIANT WAVE

Even as the storm's vanguard moved overland, a giant tidal wave was swung again at Palacios on the coast. A tide of 13 feet eight inches poured water over the first floor of the hospital.

The weather bureau reported the hurricane's winds down to 110 miles an hour but warned Carla is still dangerous and may be slow to die.

50 MILES HOUR

Winds diminished at coastal points after darkness fell. At Galveston it dropped to 50 miles an hour, at Corpus Christi to 52.

The refugees, for the most part, still depended on temporary shelter. At Austin, Red Cross officials reported 180,330 evacuees were sheltered in 68 Texas counties. Of these 3,000 were infants.

FINALLY HIT

Carla, after sparring for hours offshore, finally hit Port Lavaca in the afternoon. There all but a thousand of the 10,000 residents had fled.

Up and down the coast residents had rushed to safer country. Civil defence authorities said 500,000 had fled—probably the largest exodus in U.S. history. The Red Cross estimated 300,000.

The rich coastal plains, facing a loss of $100,000,000 in cotton and rice crops alone, was all but deserted.

No deaths were traced directly to Carla but her deadly offspring—a series of tornadoes—claimed the life of a four-week-old baby in the little town of Kaplan, La. There a tornado cut a 14-block path of destruction.

But the big threat from Carla apparently had passed for Louisiana.

One of thousands of personal tragedies caused by Hurricane Carla is etched on the face of Cal Breeding, Channelview, Texas, who, with his wife was reluctantly evacuated by rescue boat and forced to leave his home—for the first time in his life.

'Crepe-Hangers' Lashed Still Hope, Says Green

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green, declaring there still is a "reasonable chance" for disarmament, hit out Monday at the "jeremiahs and crepe-hangers" in Ottawa who try to belittle Canada's efforts to halt the arms race.

Mr. Green said in the Commons there seems to be a feeling in Ottawa "that I'm down in the dumps over disarmament and have given it up as hopeless."

"This was a false notion. I think the demand for disarmament will be greater than ever before."

Canada will go to the forthcoming United Nations meeting to do what it can to rally world opinion behind disarmament and an end to nuclear testing, Mr. Green said.

TOO SERIOUS

"This issue may involve the whole future of civilization and it is much too serious a proposition to have doubting Thomases all over the place."

Opposition Leader Pearson said no one wanted to underestimate Mr. Green's optimism. But it was difficult to be an optimist and still take a realistic view of the situation.

Mr. Pearson recalled that Mr. Green himself said last week the world is hovering on the brink of nuclear war.

Canada Plans Help For Caribbean Area

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is trying to organize a program of aid for the Caribbean region on the same scale as the Colombo plan, External Affairs Minister Green told the Commons Monday night.

The Colombo plan is a joint aid program for Southeast Asia.

Mr. Green said Canada does not know yet whether the Colombo idea will work in the Caribbean but is going to try to get the project started. He gave no other details.

Kennedy Advice Still Irks Green

OTTAWA (UPI)—External Affairs Minister Howard Green last night indicated that a decision on Canada's membership in the Organization of American States (OAS) would be made "in due course."

Green also indicated the Canadian government's displeasure with President Kennedy's suggestion during his visit to Canada that this country should join the OAS.

He told the House of Commons during discussion of External Affairs Department estimates that before any decision was made the Canadian people should "realize just what the implications of such a move would be."

Green made the comments after former Liberal cabinet minister Paul Martin called on the government to join the OAS. (See also Page 30.)

He told the House that "one of the least effective ways of persuading Canada to adopt a policy is for the president or head of state of another country to come here and tell us what we should do, even though it is done with the best intentions."

"Even when it is done in that way, it is not the best way to get results," Green said, "and I am rather surprised that the honorable member would suggest that we should at once have jumped through the hoop."

Tshombe Resists Union of Congo

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuters)—President Moise Tshombe of Katanga province claimed Monday night that the United Nations plans to end the independence of his breakaway province before the opening of its General Assembly session Sept. 19.

Tshombe told his second press conference Monday that "Katanga is the object of political manoeuvring and even threats" by the UN.

HEAVILY ARMED

The Katanga leader called the conference as heavily armed Katanga patrols rumbled through the streets of Elisabethville.

The troops were called out in the face of mounting tension over a threatened showdown between the Katangan regime and the central Congolese government.

Tshombe claimed he had been issued with a UN "ultimatum" to go to Leopoldville or face "grave consequences." He said he had rejected the demand.

Suspended

Strike Issue Near Solution

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers Union were reported late last night to have reached agreement on relief time—one of the disputes that triggered a country-wide strike against GM yesterday. (See earlier story Page 14.)

Typhoon Pamela Nearing Formosa

TOKYO (AP)—Typhoon Pamela, packing central winds of 145 miles an hour, was reported nearing central Formosa early today.

The central meteorological agency in Tokyo said Pamela was 96 miles south southeast of Taipei at 3 a.m. and moving west at 15 m.p.h.

Meanwhile, typhoon Nancy, another storm roving over the

'We Will Fight' Vows NATO Boss

OTTAWA (CP)—The secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization said Monday that if there is aggression against West Berlin "we will fight."

Dirk Stikker, the one-time Netherlands foreign minister who took over the NATO post only last spring, said that from a military standpoint Berlin could and would be defended if the crisis reached the point of war.

FOOLISH ENOUGH

But the NATO leader did not feel Russian Premier Khrushchev was "foolish enough to increase the tensions to the point of war."

In a free-wheeling press conference Dr. Stikker also said:

"That nuclear warheads should be spread over more

NATO countries to improve the bargaining position of the alliance; use of nuclear weapons should be put under NATO-wide control; steps were being taken to improve consultation among members of the 15-nation alliance.

MEETS DIFENBAKER

Dr. Stikker met Canadian government officials Monday and will talk with Prime Minister Diefenbaker today.

He said the talks, covering a wide range of topics, would naturally touch on the possibility of Canada obtaining nuclear arms. His visit would serve to "bring the links of the alliance still closer" at a time of crisis touched off by the Berlin situation and the resumption of nuclear testing by Russia.

WITHIN NATO

Dr. Stikker said his personal opinion is that there should be nuclear weapons within NATO "in as wide a range as possible" to increase the bargaining power of the alliance, but that the control of such weapons should be brought under the alliance as a whole.

He criticized the present system of single or two-power control.

Cousins Meet By Accident

AMERSHAM, England (AP)—Two cousins admitted Monday that for a real get-together there's nothing like a head-on collision.

Charlie Crook lives in Islington, a London suburb.

EIGHT YEARS

His cousin, John Barker, lives in Gloucester. Each decided Sunday to pay the other a visit. They hadn't met in eight years.

Crook headed out on the Oxford Highway for Gloucester. At Gloucester, Barker took the road to London.

DIDN'T KNOW

Somewhere they passed, but didn't know it. At Gloucester, Crook was told: "John's driven to London."

At London, Barker was informed: "Charlie's gone to Gloucester."

Disappointed, both started back to their respective homes. Both stopped in Amersham at the same pub, entered by

He Had Garbage On His Conscience

DUNCAN—A Cherry Point resident, with a whole year's garbage on his conscience, has sent Duncan council a cheque for $10 to pay for his use of the city's dump.

A letter from P. D. McLennan, enclosing the cheque, was read to a thunderstruck city council last night.

Mr. McLennan's letter said he had been using the dump for more than a year though not a resident of the city.

His conscience, he said, "is extremely elastic" but still refused to allow him to impose further on the city.
